Seek Support To Open Gulf

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States and Britain reportedly plan to seek cooperation of other maritime nations in support of their insistence that the Gulf of Aqaba be open to Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser said Monday the waterway would be closed to Israeli shipping and that ships carrying strategic cargoes to Israel also would be barred from the Gulf of Aqaba. There were reports Wednesday the Egyptians have mined the Gulf, Israel's supply lifeline to the East.

U.S. diplomatic efforts at present are aimed principally at trying to persuade Nasser to modify his position. This is also reported to be the major concern at the moment of the British and French governments.

All three fear war in the Middle East could result from an Israeli-Egyptian clash over the right of access to the southern Israeli port of Elath at the head of the Gulf.

Minister of State George Thomson of Britain spent more than five hours Wednesday talking with Secretary of State Dean Rusk and other top officials on moves to deal with the Egyptian action and what Thomson afterward called "the threatening situation in the Middle East."

"What I have been seeking to do today," Thomson said, "was to discuss with the American government practical ways and means of insuring that the right of international passage is properly preserved."

Other informants said the two governments agreed the widest possible support should be sought from other nations for the principle that the Gulf of Aqaba is an international waterside the United Nations to try to prevent war in the Middle East. Britain asked the Soviets, who are backing the Arabs, to use their influence to restrain Egypt and Syria.

President Johnson was reported planning to fly to Canada today to discuss the crisis with Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson.

A major stumbling block to easing tensions was Egypt's proclaimed blockade of Israeli shipping to and from its southern port of Elath, on the Gulf of Aqaba, its link to East Africa, Asia and Iranian oil.

Nasser's reported willingness to "facilitate" Thant's peace mission, it was doubted that he would lift the blockade, which Israel has said it would not permit.

However, there was no word of any Israeli attempt to challenge the Egyptian guns and patrol boats guarding the Strait of Tiran, the entrance from the Red Sea into the gulf. No Israeli ships have been reported en route to the gulf, and an official at Elath said no ships were docked there.

The semi-official Cairo newspaper Al Ahram reported that Egyptian authorities in the gulf stopped and searched two German ships Wednesday and allowed them to continue after leaving their destination was Aqaba. Jordan's port within sight of Elath.

A seven-ship amphibious force of the U.S. 6th Fleet left Naples today with 2,000 Marines aboard while the fleet's flagship, the guided missile cruiser Little Rock, left its base at Gata, 36 miles north of Naples.

U.S. Navy officers at Naples said both sailings were part of regular operations scheduled before the current threat of fighting in the Middle East. They would not say where in the Mediterranean the ships were going or whether they would join a 6th Fleet carrier task force in eastern waters.

At U.N. headquarters in New York, the Security Council met to discuss the Middle East. But the only developments were U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg's urging for a big-power peace effort and a Soviet demand for withdrawal of U.S. and British warships from the Mediterranean.

County Problem

Trained Help For Planning

Unless three trained and qualified planners are obtained within two months to complete the Ulster County Planning Board Staff, the county will not be able to fill out its part of the agreement in regards to the county comprehensive planning program approved last year by the Board of Supervisors. Could Delay Program

This predicament, which could delay the comprehensive program more than a year and possibly two, was made known after the County Industrial Development Committee and Supervisor George Majestic of Gardiner met with the County Planning Board earlier this week.

The meeting was called for the purpose of discussing the problem of attracting trained and qualified planners to direct and assist in carrying out the planning program. It was noted that competition in employing trained planners is keen on a national scale.

The application for a state and federally assisted planning assistance grant has been approved by the State and is now being processed by the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Approval of the federal department is needed in order that a contract can be prepared and federal monies allocated.

A study was made of the physical work that is needed to prepare the grounds for the fair which will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 11, 12 and 13. A feature of the event this year will be the open house show scheduled for the closing day.

With some renovations that are expected to be made soon to the buildings and grounds, the new site will provide more spacious areas for exhibits and parking of vehicles. The latter had been a problem on occasions during previous fairs held at Forsyth Park.

A new horse ring is to be built on the property. The next meeting of the Agricultural Society officials will be held in mid-June at which time definite plans and assignments for exhibitors will be made.

School Bill Key Stripped

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House passed most of President Johnson's school aid bill early today after a bitter, marathon debate but stripped from the U.S. Office of Education one of its prized programs.

The result of the 14-hour session was mixed for the administration.

It won the big fight, defeating a determined Republican effort to turn the entire program over to the states, but suffered losses some members said seriously damaged federal efforts to aid education.

The main setback came on an amendment by Rep. Edith Green, D-Ore., to give the states control of a program designed to help local communities set up experimental programs outside the regular school system.

337 War Toll, New U.S. High

By GEORGE MCARTHUR

SAIGON (AP)—The U.S. Command announced today that a record number of 337 Americans were killed in action last week, mainly in fighting around the demilitarized zone which has now been emptied of allied troops following its invasion a week ago.

The American Command said the last U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese units have now left the southern half of the zone, taking with them a wealth of captured booty plus thousands of civilian refugees.

Among the captured items were 180 North Vietnamese gas masks seized Wednesday along with 1,000 mortar shells.

The casualty report listed 337 Americans killed, 2,282 wounded and 31 missing during last week. In addition, 241 South Vietnamese troops were reported killed and other allies, mainly the South Koreans, reported 50 dead. Communist losses were 2,464 killed. All this made the week by far the bloodiest of the war.

The week's casualties brought

Ronald Hucker Fund

Dance to Benefit Fire Victim

As adults of both Woodstock and Phoenicia contributed both time and money to The Ronald Hucker Fund, teenagers of Woodstock were organizing their own benefit for young Hucker, the valiant 16-year-old victim of a recent fire.

The youth of Woodstock, under the chairmanship of Miss Wendy MacCleod, are hard at work on a benefit dance for the Hucker Fund Saturday at 8 p. m. at St. Gregory's Episcopal Church parish hall, Route 212, Woodstock. Donating its musical services to this worthy cause will be a rock and roll band from the Poughkeepsie area, Loves Body.

This quartet, with a widely growing reputation, is expected to attract a large crowd of youths from all over the northern Ulster County area. Tickets may be purchased at the door and all proceeds will be used toward medical expenses for the Hucker boy.

Meanwhile, the adult community of Woodstock was lending assistance by contributing to The Hucker Fund, a special account for which has been set up at the National Bank of Orange and Ulster Counties, Woodstock. Checks and cash donations for the boy's medical expenses will be accepted there. Phoenicia residents are contributing to a fund in their area, organized by the local Rotary Club and other civic groups. Donations may be made through the Kingston Trust Company branch at Phoenicia or through any cooperating organization, including the La-Salette group. The treasurer of the Rotary Club there is also accepting contributions.

The Hucker youth suffered severe burns in a cabin fire while camping out with two companions in a summer residence which caught fire April 30. Given only a 50-50 chance of survival in the beginning, he has been making noticeable progress at Albany Medical Center, in spite of critical burns which threatened his eyesight and use of hands and a case of pneumonia which developed later.

The Hucker boy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Hucker of the Lake Hill section of Woodstock and owners of a bakery in Phoenicia. After helping to fight to extinguish the late April blaze, he had to be carried down a mountain side by his two companions; was later transferred from a Kingston hospital to the Albany Medical Center. Doctors say he is now able to eat light foods and his eyesight is improving, but treatment will be long and costly and he cannot hope to return home for several months.

End Bickering, One Hope for UR Ills: Freeman Survey

By CHARLES R. DOUGLAS

Kingston needs all-out cooperation of all agencies, officials and individuals involved to advance its urban renewal projects plus a definite end of bickering on all fronts in the opinion of local observers of official capacity it was revealed today from an interview.

They feel definitely that downtown's Broadway East project, which is well advanced, but now hampered by federal government edict and the up-town project, not yet actually started, and threatened by technical state appraisal, could be effectively advanced by direct and honest concern from all sources.

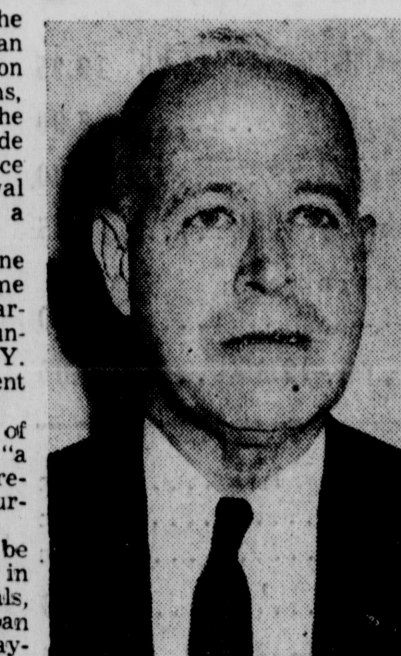

PETER O. ALLEN

M. Kalish, who has served on the Chamber of Commerce urban renewal committee. "Suggestion can come from all directions, but with all mindful of the progress that could be made with no political interference we can see the urban renewal program in Kingston become a reality."

Recently, the political scene has involved a tossing of blame on Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan and the Common Council by Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick of Ellenville for recent urban renewal delays.

Allen of the Chamber of Commerce said he senses "a growing apprehension over recent development involving urban renewal."

This apprehension is to be dealt with at a meeting today in New York with federal officials, members of the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency, Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan, S. James Matthews, counsel of the renewal assistance, Department of Housing and Urban Development, who charged that the KURA has not complied with recent orders from his office and declared the payment of salary to Eric Hemphill, KURA executive director suspended until further notice. The DHUD has been concerned mostly with relocation of tenants in downtown's urban renewal area and with removal of demolition rubble.

MAYOR GARRAGHAN

Congressman Resnick blames this criticism on the mayor and Common Council rather than on the KURA, but the letter in a statement Wednesday said it has been sincerely active to comply with recent orders from the DHUD.

In his comment on later developments, Allen of the Chamber of Commerce said that problems faced in the Broadway East project were not new revelations. They have been known to exist for some time.

Unfortunately, says Allen, "appropriate steps have not been taken by the various agencies to implement sound programs for building code enforcement and rehabilitation for sub-standard structures, especially in the city's Seventh, Eighth and 10 wards. These and other tools have not been utilized to insure the timely and successful relocation of urban renewal area residents. In many respects we are not eliminating slums, but just relocating them. Allen said he feels that "each agency tends to rise in defense of itself rather than earnestly applying its energies to a prompt and successful conclusion of existing problems."

Uptown, he says, has "expressed grave fears that the program will be too late to save the city's commercial core unless immediate steps are taken to get the program moving. The present federal order suspending implementation of the uptown project must be lifted. This can only be done through a concerted effort to ascertain the reason for the suspension, and correction of these faults."

If the plan now approved is "not wholly feasible," Allen says, "immediate and intensive action must be taken to alter it," and he suggested that "perhaps a fresh, professional estimate should be made of present conditions and future needs for Uptown Kingston."

He advised that "Independent, unbiased and professional advice is necessary, if we are to succeed in meeting uptown's future challenges. Just working and living in a city does not qualify even the most sincere

Evaluation Is Given of Expo Show at Armory

Kingston Lions Club received an evaluation of the Lions Club Exposition conducted in April by several members of Ulster County Community College. The students conducted a survey during the Lions Show interviewing folks and compiled a report on the show.

The students conducted their survey under the guidance of Prof. Raymond Hubbard, assistant professor of business. Students in their survey interviewed the folks at the Exposition on what they liked, disliked about the show, how it could be improved in the future and also gathered facts and figures on how many years they had attended, why they attended, and what they heard about the show. Members of the Community College participating and who presented various phases of the survey with Hubbard were Mary Weal, Barry J. Greco and Don Ereganus.

The survey presented many ideas and figures for consideration in evaluating and implementing improvements for future Lions Expositions. Members of the Kingston Lions Club gave the group a standing round of applause for organizing this valuable survey and report.

Miami in Line For Super Bowl

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The American Football League, one team bigger with the addition of Cincinnati, and the National League appeared ready today to move their super world championship game from coast to coast.

Which coast it will move to — if it actually does move — is not certain. But the Atlantic Coast — Miami — seems to be the leading candidate to host the second Super Bowl. It was held the past season on the West Coast — Los Angeles.

Another strong candidate is on the Gulf Coast — New Orleans.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle didn't indicate where the second Super Bowl might be held. He merely said Miami and New Orleans are in the running along with Los Angeles, Dallas and Houston.

Jurors Excused

Trial jurors in attendance at the May term of Supreme Court were excused from further service Wednesday afternoon by Justice Louis G. Bruhn, except for a panel to hear a final negligence action.

Thursday morning a settlement was announced in that case, Margaret R. Elmendorf and another against Ruth L. Kessman and another, an action in negligence. Thomas F. Saccaman with Charles Gaffney of counsel, appeared for plaintiff and H. Lavery of counsel for Garvin and Koehler, appearing for defendants.

Rochester Board Reviews Bridge, Refuse Problems

The monthly highway department meeting of the Town of Rochester was held in the Town Clerk's office, Accord, on May 18.

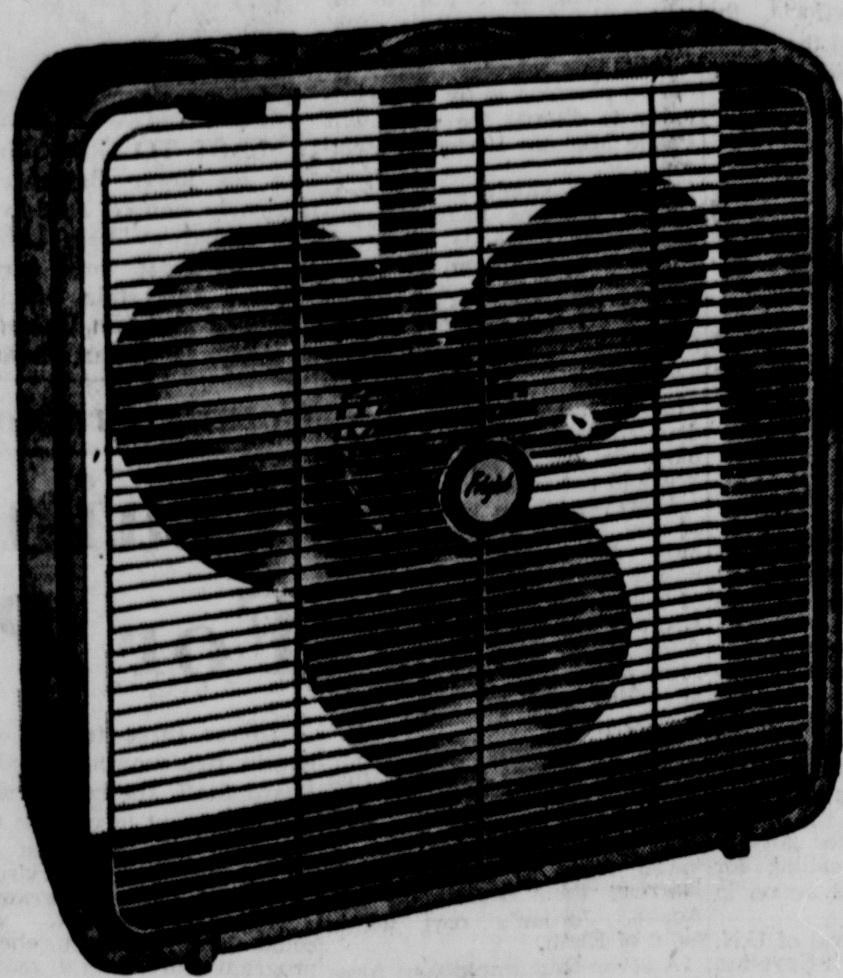

A communication was received from the Ulster County Highway Department in relation to the Palentown Cemetery Bridge.

Supervisor Franklin S. Kelder and Superintendent of Highways Richard T. Gray, way department this summer.

The town board has declared Saturday, May 27, as town cleanup day. Refuse must be put in containers and placed alongside the highway to be picked up. Kelder asked that all residents cooperate in this very important project.

Prepare Expo 67 For President's Canadian Visit

OTTAWA (AP) — Officials in Ottawa and Montreal worked frantically through the night to prepare for a whirlwind visit today by President Johnson.

Expo 67, the Montreal World's Fair, announced the President would visit the fair this morning but the visit was "subject to change" if developments in the Middle East or Vietnam required Johnson to remain in Washington.

Informants in Ottawa said Johnson had suggested a half-day tour of the fair followed by a talk with Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson on the Middle East crisis. Today is U.S. Day at the fair.

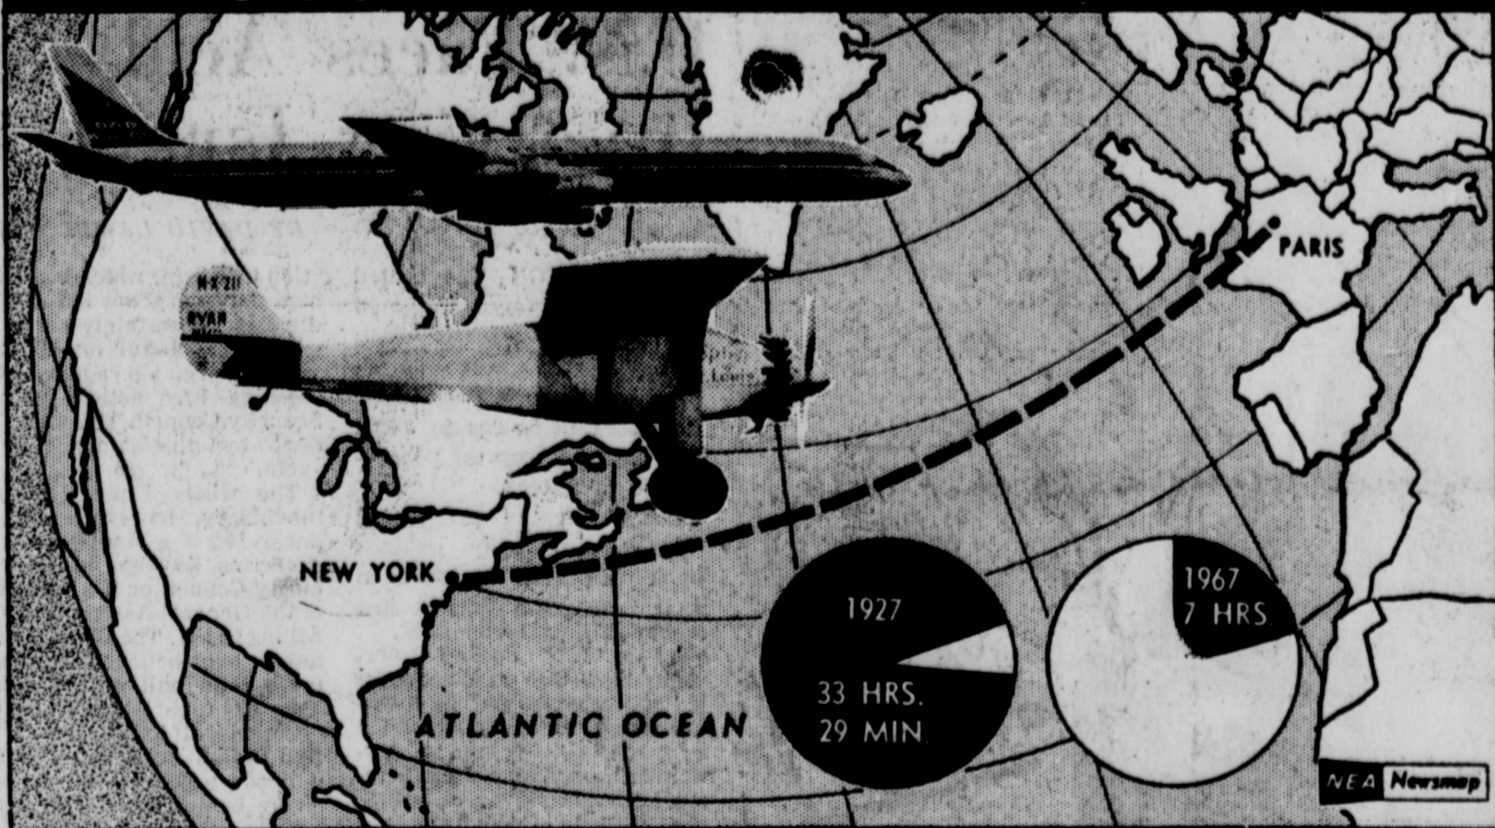

The White House and the U.S. Embassy here said they had no information on such a trip. But Canadian sources said Johnson was delaying his announcement until the last minute because the tense international situation might force him to cancel the visit.

The informants said the President would confer privately with Pearson for three or four hours at the prime minister's secluded summer residence at Harrington Lake, about 20 miles north of Ottawa.

It was learned that U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk telephoned Pearson twice Wednesday to discuss plans for Johnson's trip. Rusk was reported not planning to come to Canada himself.

Spokesmen in Ottawa said tentative plans called for the

40 YEARS OF TRANSATLANTIC FLIGHTS

Alone in a monoplane named the Spirit of St. Louis, a young U.S. air mail pilot took off from Roosevelt Field on Long Island at 7:52 a.m., May 20, 1927. Thirty-three hours and 29 minutes later, Charles Lindbergh landed at Paris' Le Bourget airport. While the feat still ranks as one of the greatest events of the century, a lot has happened in transatlantic air travel in the 40 years since the Lone Eagle's flight. Today's huge jets, carrying up to 150 passengers, have cut the time between New York's John F. Kennedy International and Paris' Orly to seven hours. The supersonic transports coming soon will cut that time in half.

President to fly to Montreal, Harrington Lake, Ottawa International Airport and back to Washington within about 12 hours.

Johnson and the Canadian leader last met at Campobello Island, N.B., last Aug. 21 when they officiated at the opening of an international park at the old summer residence of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Johnson's only other visit to Canada as President was in late 1965 when he took part in a ceremony inaugurating the Columbia River power project on the British Columbia-Washington State border.

Pearson had a chilly meeting with the President in Maryland in May 1965 after proposing in a Philadelphia speech that the United States order a pause in its Vietnam bombing raids as a peace effort. The relations between the two leaders have improved gradually since then, with Johnson often calling the prime minister to discuss international problems.

Select June 5 For 3 Criminal Cases in Court

Three criminal cases in which defendants were indicated by the April grand jury, were called before County Judge Raymond J. Mino Wednesday. All three cases were adjourned until June 5 at 10 a. m.

They are: William Hasbrouck, who was held in City Court for operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated. Arraigned under the indictment Hasbrouck said he would like time to engage an attorney. It is alleged the act took place in Kingston Feb. 16, 1967.

Ivar James Allen, third degree burglary and unlawful entry to a building. Hubert Richter appeared for Allen and a plea of innocent was entered. Bail was continued. Allen, along with Robert John McGee, is accused of entering the Dietz gas station and attempting to take tires. It is alleged that the station had been darkened for closing when the two men came to the station and while the attendant watched, the two men allegedly broke open the tire storage and attempted to take tires. Bail was continued.

In the third case the defendant is confined to jail and her attorney was not present. It also was adjourned to June 5 at 10 a. m. The defendant, Ludella Williams, is charged with second degree grand larceny growing out of an alleged purse snatching in Saugerties. Ludella Williams, 41, of Cleveland, O., along with two others on March 9, allegedly stole a pocketbook containing $650. The two other women were released after charges against them were dismissed on motion of District Attorney Francis Vogt when the case came before Saugerties Police Justice David Goble. One of them was from New York and the other from St. Louis, Mo.

The trio were apprehended on the Thruway near New Baltimore after Mrs. Vivian Schultz, operator of Vivian's Dress Shop on Partition Street, Saugerties, told police her pocketbook had been stolen. The pocketbook was found in a garbage pail at the Malden rest area north of Saugerties on the Thruway. The Ohio woman had over $300 on her person when the troopers took her into custody.

Assistant District Attorney Francis Vogt appeared for the prosecution.

During his career, Thomas Sully (1783-1872) painted more than 2,000 portraits.

Hold 4 Resort Workers for Jury On Theft Charge

Accused of the theft of a car in Ellenville on May 17, four area hotel resort employees, who were arrested after a chase by state police, were ordered held for grand jury action Wednesday after a three-hour hearing before Police Justice Ronald W. Elias.

The defendants were: Richard Goins, 31, Richmond, Va.; Malachi O'Hara, 40, also known as James P. McGloughlin, New York City; Jerry Hollwedel, 38, Brooklyn and Norman Mills, 22, Miami, Fla. They were charged with grand larceny first degree involving the alleged theft of a 1967 car owned by Bernard Dickman, 31 Roslyn Street, Ellenville.

Goins and Mills were represented by Attorney James Murray, Ellenville, and O'Hara and Hollwedel were represented by Attorney Joseph Kooperman. Both attorneys had been appointed by the court.

Assistant District Attorney Albert Lonstein appeared for the prosecution. Judge Elias reserved decision on several defense motions made by Murray and Kooperman. The defendants did not take the witness stand during the hearing and no defense witnesses were called.

VISIBLE JUNKYARDS

The Saugerties Village Board at a meeting last week took note of the fact that there are still a number of violations on abandoned automobiles throughout the village. Officials issued a warning to all residents that any abandoned or junked car found on village property, on a public thoroughfare or on private property will be towed away.

Similar conditions exist in other villages and townships throughout the county and these boards also should take immediate action in enforcing the ordinance.

The approach to many communities now is blighted by wrecked cars. What a messy sight they make on some of the magnificent scenic rides in the country.

Zoning, planning, restrictions or nearness to highways, high fences, disposal of junk car carcasses are matters for village boards to consider. Residents who take pride in their community look to the village board to bring about the desired results.

This is spring time and although the weather may be playing tricks we soon will have beautiful gardens, flower beds and lawns. Let's not mar the landscape with old junk cars along the highway.

DISASTER WARNING SYSTEM

The first major steps in a nationwide natural disaster warning system, first announced last year by President Johnson, have been taken. The Government has purchased powerful radars to improve river forecasting and warnings of tornadoes, hurricanes, floods and other violent outbursts of nature.

With such disasters claiming 500 to 600 lives a year, and doing $11 billion to $15 billion a year in damage, half the lives and a good portion of the damage can be saved with timely and proper warnings.

The Environmental Science Services Administration is implementing the warning system. Dr. Robert M. White, the administrator, says that 25 states would receive earlier and more complete warnings as a result of these initial steps, costing $7 million in current fiscal 1967. Slightly more has been requested for expanding the network for the next fiscal year, until eventually the whole country is included.

Initial river forecasting and flood warning services were built for the Delaware and Susquehanna River basins in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware. New radars are being added in the Midwest tornado belts and along the hurricane-vulnerable Gulf of Mexico and Atlantic Coasts. An observatory is being constructed at Palmer, Alaska, to provide for more rapid detection of seismic sea waves.

If the work is scattered, it is to cover known danger zones. The whole country will be protected when the warning system is completed.

LAST AND ONLY ALTERNATIVE

If North Vietnam's leaders had looked upon the Senators critical of United States military policy as friendly, they will listen to their warning that a negotiated peace is the last and only alternative to a prolonged and intensified war.

If on the other hand, North Vietnam had looked upon these critics of the war effort as its dupes, then it will know that it can no longer depend on them to soften American resistance, and perhaps decide it cannot win in the field.

Unless, of course, North Vietnam still hopes that it can influence enough of the bitter-enders outside Congress to continue their seditious opposition to bringing the war to a successful close, and will now bank on them to create enough havoc here still to turn the scales in its favor.

The 16 Senators have gone a long way to persuade Hanoi that despite their opposition to President Johnson's war policy, they cannot be counted on to bring about a disastrous retreat such as that of the French after Dien Bien Phu. The Senators flatly stated they "remain steadfastly opposed to any unilateral withdrawal of American troops from South Vietnam."

The signers included the best-known critics of President Johnson's war policy—J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee and Robert F. Kennedy of New York; also, Frank Church of Idaho, the author of the statement, Wayne Morse of Oregon, Frank E. Moss, of Utah, E. L. Bartlett of Alaska, Lee Metcalf of Montana, Vance Hartke of Indiana, Gaylor Nelson of Wisconsin. Quentin Burdick of North Dakota, Joseph S. Clark of Pennsylvania, Stephen M. Young of Ohio and Clairborne Pell of Rhode Island, all Democrats; and John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky and Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon, Republicans.

The Senators pointed out that they had been accused of prolonging the war by leaving a false impression with Hanoi that the United States did not have the will to persist in the fighting. Their statement sought to remove any doubt. Now Ho Chi Minh and his associates know that there is no Trojan horse they can count on in American leadership.

There have been so many cab hold-ups in New York, that all cabs must be protected with bullet-proof shields within three months. Much as they want the safety, cab drivers are grumbling that shields will cut down their tips. Better lose a gratuity and be alive.

'Long Hot Summer' Is Threat-Term

WASHINGTON — Something very big and very deep—and very dangerous—is moving just below the surface across the country.

A controlling and ordinarily a moderate-minded majority is becoming grimly angry at the insatiable "demands" alike of extremist civil rights activists and of a left-wing urban political lobby that insists upon wholly unreasonable subsidies from the rest of the people as the price for allowing the maintenance even of elementary civil order.

Too many political and interest-bloc leaders who ought to know better are employing unjustifiable and indefensible tactics. They are beginning to use forms of pressure that are alien to a free and orderly society. They are abandoning the techniques of lawful and rational persuasion for tactics that come close to sheer blackmail.

In a word, they are endlessly threatening that unless this thing or that thing is done for civil rights, or for urban renewal, or for more public housing, or for more swimming pools, or whatnot, this nation will confront "a long, hot summer."

Long since, the phrase "long, hot summer" has come to mean mob violence, in the streets, in the ghettos, in the universities, or wherever. It is a threat-term, an ugly slogan that has no place in civilized political discussion.

Let the issue touch social or reformist proposals anywhere and immediately some advocate rises to say in substance those who are opposed, or to those who merely wish to hear all the facts before making up their minds: "You will accept this and like it—for if you don't, there is going to be a long, hot summer."

So common has this cliché become that it is now unhelpfully being used even by men who are basically quite responsible and who do not pause to consider all the implications of what they are saying.

No man in his right mind, for illustration, could regard Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz as in any way unsympathetic to civil rights or to the genuine needs of the poor whether urban or rural, though to many politicians "poor" has become a synonym only for those who live in the big cities. It is as though nobody outside megalopolis has any problems.

Wirtz, that is to say, is incontestably both liberal and social-minded. But even he now has had to point out to so ordinarily solid a politician as Sen. Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut that incessant predictions of some "long, hot summer" are unintentionally contributing to potential violence.

What Wirtz and others in high positions are saying is that they fully recognize the existence of some remaining social and racial injustice but that it is no good pretending that "nothing" is being done, whereas in simple truth a great deal is being done at vast expense—too much, too fast, indeed, to some observers, including this one.

Again, for another example, so high a public servant as Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey is moved to go so far, in supporting social reforms that are valid in themselves, as to say that unless these come about there will be a "disease of violence."

The great point is that this sort of melodramatic rhetoric is not only unjustified on the plain realities of current American life—which in demonstrable fact is constantly being made less and less harsh even to the poor—but is gravely self-defeating. For this is a nation that has been notably generous rather than ungenerous to its poor and its dispossessed, and it is a nation becoming very tired of having it said that it lacks compassion and understanding.

Already, this form of pleasure has gone much too far. Already, it has created a climate of resentment and resistance among perfectly fair-minded men. They do not like to be told that they have been penny-pinching where they have been the reverse. And they are approaching the boiling point of an unjustified emotionalism of their own—a point where they are about to say to the devil with all social reform, not simply to the unwise and unattainable but also to the sensible and necessary.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

A few weeks ago, when Senator Robert Kennedy declared that "Lyndon Johnson is a great President," the words must have come slow and hard. When George Romney, governor of Michigan, painted himself into a corner and proclaimed that his Vietnam policy would be almost identical with that of Johnson, it must have caused a shudder in his Mormon chest.

Senator Everett Dirksen's disavowal of Congressman's Gerald Ford's personal scorn of Lyndon Johnson was akin to the breakup of winter. Richard Nixon's plea that the Vietnam war is not being prosecuted to the full extent of United States power poisons a covey of Republican doves. My conferees, the columnists and the editorialists, have reduced the Presidency of the United States to a popularity contest.

This is what Lyndon Johnson hasn't got. He has talent. He's a workhorse. He's a patriot. But the pollsters claim the people no longer like him. If true, we who once a single vote apiece had better start thinking of what kind of man we want in the White House.

A poet? A hand-kisser? A handsome movie star? A hero? A wit? Or would it be better to have a drudge who understands the exercise of power? This Republic has endured the tenures of 36 Presidents, of whom a half dozen had elements of greatness, but, until now, no one cared whether the incumbent was as ugly as Abraham Lincoln, as foolish as Thomas Jefferson, or as indolent as Calvin Coolidge.

Good man or poor, the majestic office of President seemed to carry the chosen man on a tide of progress. The nation was young and muscular and resourceful. Would Richard Nixon have been a smaller man in the office if he had won the television debates with John F. Kennedy?

I doubt it. I know both men and Nixon had been at the source of power in Washington while Kennedy was serving time as junior Senator from Massachusetts. In a choice between them, we elected the chamber. At that precise point, we, the people, began to notice how a candidate wears clothes, how untidily he speaks, his bon mots, the length of his lashes.

Sardonically, Lyndon Johnson cannot compare with Kennedy. When our young man was martyred, we looked around for something to kick, and the Texan was ideal. First of all, he appeared to be humorless. Second, he was known as a sensitive fighter, and they are made for kicking. The bruises will be carried into history. No matter how hard he worked, a strong segment of our articulate people made fun of him.

He is not my man. I am not his. Lyndon Johnson was the fourth President with whom I worked personally. A book will be published in a couple of weeks, and it will be an unpolitical closeup, or it will be a cipher. I do not expect to see him again.

Studies of American history will show any student that you will have to go back 106 years to find as much contempt and vituperation as we now toss at the White House. At one time, it didn't matter whether a President was Republican or Democratic—we respected his office. If Johnson is defeated next year, his successor can expect the same treatment, because the game has become one of waiting until the Chief Magistrate goes, and then we fall on him in derision.

He doesn't have to make a mistake. It is enough that

U.N. Faces Acid Test in Crisis Involving Israel and Egypt

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—The United Nations now faces the acid test of its 22 years of existence. Will it emerge as an international organization that interposes measures to avoid big wars and keep the peace—or will it falter?

The charter of the United Nations specifically outlines steps that can be taken in such a situation as has just arisen in the Middle East.

If the U.N. doesn't intervene, then the only recourse is "collective action" by member states. This is permissible as a responsibility of the participants only and doesn't require the approval of either the Security Council or the General Assembly.

The U.N. can offer methods of conciliation, mediation or adjustment, and it can, as in the case of Korea in 1950, call on member nations to act together under the auspices of the Security Council.

The Soviet Union as well as the United States possesses a veto power. The Russian representative was absent in 1950 when the Security Council intervened in the Korean conflict, and there still is much speculation as to whether this was accidental or intentional. The Soviets, however, boasted later that they were supplying Red China with weapons and supplies. Maybe they withheld their veto so as to be free to help their ally carry out its aggression. The point has never been cleared up.

Today the Soviet Union is supplying arms and ammunition to Egypt, which has initiated the emergency in the Middle East. It certainly would be politically tactful for the Soviets to refrain again from blocking any action by the Security Council. This could be done by abstaining from a veto.

The whole United Nations machinery, however, can be paralyzed if a single member exercises its veto in the Security Council or if a majority of the General Assembly is unwilling to act. The Communists today are believed to have more than half of the members on their side in major questions affecting Russia or Red China. But if this is true, it needs to be proved conclusively before the world.

The issue concerns not one country or region but all countries. Shall local wars be ignored even if they appear to be precipitating larger conflicts? The United States entered the war in Southeast Asia at the request of the South Vietnamese government and now has several allies. It is a "collective action" as defined in Article 51 of the U.N. charter.

There has been a desire by the U.N. to avoid intervention in local wars, but the language of the charter makes it clear that any situation which threatens international peace can bring about U.N. intervention or collective action by members. This was the case in the Congo. The objective, of course, is to keep conflicts from widening.

The Middle East today is already menaced by a state of war. For, when Egypt declared a blockade of the Gulf of Aqaba—which is Israel's only outlet to the Red Sea and the Indian Ocean—this embargo presumably was imposed not merely against the vessels of neutral countries.

The moment a state of war is threatened or begins, the United Nations has an obligation to suggest steps of a peace-making nature. It can ask for a suspension of the blockade, or it can recommend that the grievances be submitted to the World Court, with shipments of nonmilitary articles permitted to land in the interim. It can, if necessary, organize among its members, a peace-keeping force.

The whole world will be expecting the United Nations to live up to the principles written in its charter and try to keep the dispute between Egypt and Israel from becoming a full-scale war. If nothing is done, the U.N. will have demonstrated that its usefulness as an international organization has come to an end. Would the United States then be justified in continuing to supply the biggest share of the funds for the further operation of that body? A different alliance might have to be formed. The American government is still hopeful, however, that the members of the United Nations will not let the organization perish, as did the League of Nations.

'These Days'

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

SENATOR DIRKSEN MAY GET THERE YET

Everett Dirksen, the Senate Minority Floor Leader, is a man of infinite resource. Defeated by a margin of seven votes in Congress in his attempt to offer a Constitutional amendment that would, in effect, repeal the Supreme Court's "one man, one vote" decision as it applies to electing both houses of a state legislature, the wily operator from Illinois remembered that there was another way of changing the basic law of the land. The fact that it has never been used in 178 years of our history as a federal union doesn't make it any less legal.

The Federal Constitution has been amended twenty-five times, and each time it has been Congress that proposed the amendment for subsequent ratification by legislatures of three-fourths of the states.

But our Founding Fathers, who were fearful that the day might come when Congress would fail to protect the rights of the individual states to ask for Constitutional change, provided a way in which the state legislatures themselves could propose amendments. Congress is required by this alternative amending rule to call a Constitutional Convention when two-thirds of the states, acting through their legislatures themselves could propose amendments. This Congress is required by this alternative amending rule to call a Constitutional Convention when two-thirds of the states, acting through their legislatures, ask for it.

The other day Senator Dirksen, with Senator Hruska of Nebraska, held a briefing luncheon for commentators to explain that the time for a Constitutional Convention to discuss the desirability of the Dirksen Reapportionment Amendment (which would let a state apportion the membership of one legislative House "on factors other than population") might come at any moment. Thirty-two states have already filed their applications asking for a convention to vote on proposing the Dirksen Amendment, and only two more are needed to make the convention a reality.

What bothers Dirksen is the great hue and cry about the "danger" of holding a Constitutional Convention. It is being said that the Senator is trying to "circumvent the will of Congress" by "sneaking a convention over." But the Founding Fathers had no intention of making the "will of Congress" supreme; they wanted to preserve a balance between Congress and the States. (This desire is what gave birth to the Tenth Amendment.) The hobbogoblin thought has been suggested that a Constitutional Convention, once it is in session, might decide to do something drastic, such as repealing the whole Bill of Rights or abolishing the Supreme Court. (Copyright, 1967, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

The proposed convention, however, would be limited by the wording of its call to talking about one thing only: the desirability of an amendment that would let a state require that one house of its legislature be elected on a geographical basis, say, instead of by "one man, one vote." The Dirksen Amendment, if subsequently adopted after submission to the states, would not force abrogation of the "one man, one vote" principle on any state; it would merely make the matter permissive. This could hardly undermine the republic.

If there has been any sapping of our Constitutional structure, it has already been done by the Supreme Court. This is made indelibly plain by L. Brent Bozell in his book, "The Warren Revolution."

With scrupulous scholarship, Mr. Bozell has shown how Mr. Justice Black did violence to the history of our original Constitutional Convention of 1787 in order to build a spurious case for applying the "one man, one vote" rule to the election of both houses of state legislatures. The whole appalling story of the Warren Court's distortion of early American Constitutional history is set forth in a chapter on "Wesberry vs. Sanders," which shows how the Founding Fathers found a model in the government of the Connecticut colony for their "great compromise" that gave every state equal representation in the U.S. Senate.

As a footnote to the quarrel about denying the principle of geographical legislative representation for one house within the individual states, Clarence Street, the crusader for a federation of the Atlantic nations, thinks the Supreme Court has brought its own great hopes for a "United States of the Western World" into contempt. Little Belgium and little Luxembourg would no more enter today into a "federal union" based entirely on "one man, one vote" than little Delaware and little New Jersey would have in 1787. In short, strict adherence to "one man, one vote" would forever doom the world to fragmentation, such as we now have under the dispensation of the so-called United Nations, which are even more impotent than the American colonies were under the Articles of Confederation.

LBJ's Attack Of Thant Puts Stress on Crisis

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—Nothing better illustrates the gravity of the Middle East crisis than President Johnson's unprecedented attack on U Thant, secretary-general of the United Nations.

U Thant, not one of the strong men in that job, is a gentle Burmese whose prompt obedience to the demand of Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser has intensified the crisis and was the reason for Johnson's attack.

The two former secretaries general—Trygve Lie of Norway and Dag Hammarskjöld of Sweden—operated from strength, but U Thant, who succeeded the Swede in 1961, seems to rely mostly on indignation.

He has repeatedly been indignant, for instance, at the American role in Vietnam and he apparently had such a distaste for the mixed-up condition of the nations that when his term ended last year he wanted to retire.

But the U.N. members, including this country and the Soviet Union, voted to reappoint him. This was done probably more to keep peace in the United Nations than to keep U Thant. He was about the only one the United States and Moscow could agree on.

Ever since the Israeli-Egyptian war of 1956, brief though it was, the United Nations has had a peacekeeping force on the Egyptian side of the Israeli-Egyptian frontier. Israel wouldn't permit the U.N. troops inside its territory.

Nasser let them patrol the border—about 3,400 men from eight nations—so long and Israeli-Egyptian relations were fairly quiet. But when both sides began to mobilize for war Nasser demanded they be removed.

And U Thant quickly removed them. He did this on his own without approval by the U.N. General Assembly or the Security Council. The crisis got worse, even though U Thant flew to Egypt Tuesday to try to calm down Nasser.

Johnson didn't mention U Thant by name Tuesday night when he read a statement on the Middle East to White House newsmen. But he didn't have to when he said: "We are dismayed at the hurried withdrawal of the United Nations Emergency Force from Gaza and Sinai after more than 10 years of steadfast and effective service in keeping the peace, without action by either the General Assembly or the Security Council."

"We continue to regard the presence of the United Nations in the area as a matter of fundamental importance and shall support its continuance with all possible vigor."

U Thant was also criticized in Congress for the obvious reason: What's the sense of a peacekeeping force if it disappears as soon as the peace is disturbed?

As Congress pressed for U.N. intervention to prevent war, while U Thant was in Egypt, the Security Council was called into session today.

The maneuvering so far has been too fuzzy to learn the real motivations but Nasser, even if it all turns out to be a phony front on his part to gain prestige among the Arabs, could hardly have picked a better time for him.

The United States with its hands full trying to fight the war in Vietnam and opinion on that divided at home, is not in a position to plunge forcefully into a Middle East dispute except as a last resort.

Further—and it's not clear yet whether his was by prearrangement—Nasser quickly got the support of the Soviet Union. This whole thing may be a little trickier than it looks.

It would suit the Soviets fine if the United States, fearing it might get into two conflicts at the same time, suddenly decided to make concessions to North Vietnam to get peace there, at least.

Johnson hasn't flatly backed Israel but he was critical of Egypt for its reported closing of the Gulf of Aqaba, Israel's only outlet on the Red Sea. Nasser has long refused to let Israel use the Suez Canal.

Meanwhile Johnson and Congress, which has been divided on Vietnam, both solidly call for U.N. intervention to prevent an Israeli-Egyptian war.

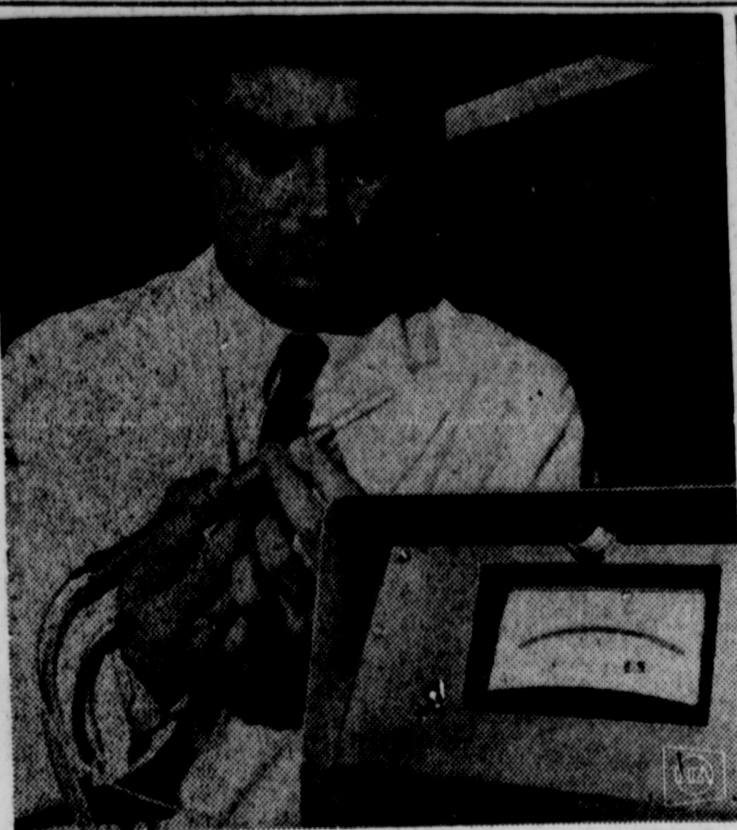

Halt Sit-Down

ROME (AP)—More than 500 riot police used rubber truncheons today to break up a sit-down near the U. S. Embassy by nearly 1,000 anti-American demonstrators.

More than 20 rioters were injured in the demonstration protesting U. S. military action in Vietnam. About 100 were rounded up for questioning.

Students View Court

A group of students from the Hunter-Tannersville High School was present in Supreme Court Wednesday where they witnessed the selection of a jury and observed the court in action. The students also visited other departments of the county, including an inspection of the grand jury room where the function of that department was explained.

EYE REPAIR using a frozen probe is being done at the University of Michigan Hospital at Ann Arbor, Mich. The metal-tipped probe is applied to the outer surface of the eyeball as a means of treating retinal breaks and detachments—one of the newer applications of cryosurgery. Fluid at 75 degrees below zero enters the probe as it touches the eye, and the extreme cold creates an ice "rivet" on the separated retina. The rivet melts when the probe is removed, but scar tissue that develops binds the break.

End Bickering, One Hope for

individual to establish or modify plans for urban redevelopment, anyone than possession of a driver's license would make a person a traffic expert.

Allen notes that "The present plan is professionally conceived. If the local citizens now feel that it is outdated, they should again consult a professional city planner. Working with a citizens' committee, he should be well able to provide a sound solution to the core area's problems."

Allen said he was concerned with the city's business community, especially "if the two urban renewal programs are not swiftly and soundly brought into line with today's needs, and then excitedly bringing them to completion."

George Svirsky, Chamber of Commerce president, also cited lack of cooperation among agencies and noted that most individuals feel they are experts on urban renewal.

Everyone, he said, should try to cooperate in advancing urban renewal and the various local agencies, mayor and all concerned should try to "iron out" problems.

Richard M. Kalish, who has been in contact with urban renewal procedure through his work with the Chamber of Commerce said.

Hits Lack of Progress
"My never-ending interest in the community in general and urban renewal in downtown Kingston is out of project prompts me to be outspoken in my criticism of the lack of progress in the area."

"In recent weeks the project has been the focal point of accusations, denials and bickering with little apparent progress being made."

"In my opinion, the only solution lies in a more unified and understanding approach to the problem."

"All interested agencies and individuals must keep one object in mind. The revitalization of the downtown area by providing necessary housing for the people involved, and at the same time develop the area for business and industry."

Suggests Counseling
"Possibly a group of well informed and interested citizens of the community could be called upon for advice and counsel. Suggestions can come from all directions, but with all mindful of the progress that could be made. With no political interference we can see that the urban renewal program in Kingston becomes a reality."

The KURA earlier this month received from Albert E. Bibby, assistant commissioner, State Division of Housing, a long list of proposals for changes in the urban renewal plan.

KURA Executive Director Hemphill, noting the proposed changes, said that by the time the urban renewal plan becomes final, most of the proposals will be complied with, and he noted that members of the KURA and state officials will meet in the near future.

Division's Letter
The Division of Housing letter to Hemphill:

As you know the feasibility of the urban renewal plan for the referenced project has been of concern to this Division for some time.

While we recognize that the plan has been approved by the Planning Board and the Common Council of the City of Kingston and the Federal Government, such approvals were made some time ago. Due to the changing environment in the City, the completion of the Kingston Shoppers Plaza and the rerouting of Highway 209, the time has come in our estimation to restudy the validity of the NYR-121 urban renewal plan.

The lack of any positive identification between the NYR-121 area and the Kingston Shoppers Plaza is particularly disturbing. Certainly with the variety of shopping available in the Plaza and its very size, it should be looked upon as an important business generator for the entire NYR-121 area. To plan the NYR-121 area without considering identification with the Kingston Shoppers Plaza would seem to be an operation that would preclude the Wall Street, North Front Street business community from benefiting fully from the business generating power of the Plaza.

Specifically, we have serious reservations with respect to the following provisions of the urban renewal plan:

The economic feasibility of the three-story parking structure proposed for city ownership and operation.

The feasibility of the proposed Mall and the willingness of the business community to go along with its concept.

The willingness of property owners in the NYR-121 project area to comply with the proposed rehabilitation program.

The lack of any realistic plan in the event owners will not comply with rehabilitation requirements.

The lack of any visual tie-in between the NYR-121 project and the Kingston Shoppers Plaza project.

The lack of a proposal for a street plan that would directly link the Kingston Shoppers Plaza and NYR-121.

The lack of any plan to provide convenient and safe pedestrian ways between NYR-121 and the Kingston Shoppers Plaza.

The degree of demolition contemplated in the Hurley Avenue and Taylor and Murphy Street areas.

The lack of any demolition on North Front Street.

The proposal to move certain persons from apartments and the conversion of the resultant space into offices.

Toward overcoming in part the problems posed above, we urge your very serious consideration of the following proposals:

The substitution of rehabilitation for demolition in the Hurley Avenue, Taylor Street and Murphy Street areas or the initiation of a concentrated code enforcement program.

The demolition of at least the Montgomery Ward and Rose Shop structures.

Consideration of street level parking off North Front Street for 200 to 225 cars with basement parking for a similar number. The parking area could extend to the new Plaza Road.

Provisions of an escalator from the rear of the North Front St. level to the Kingston Shoppers Plaza.

A realistic determination of the willingness of property owners to conform to the rehabilitation proposed in your plan.

Until such time as a re-evaluation is carried out and changes made to bring the urban renewal plan into conformity with existing conditions we will be unable to offer you a contract for the provision of state capital grant funds.

We would be pleased to meet with members of your urban renewal agency and staff and city officials for a discussion of this entire matter.

agreed on the sum of $6,000 for the project and later increased that amount to $9,000, but that figure as yet failed to attract the trained planners that are needed. The $9,000 proposed appropriation will depend on whether the county receives the grant now under consideration.

In answer to the Home Rule and Local Government Committee of the State Constitutional Convention, the county planning board recommended that strong consideration be given to careful study to giving counties more planning authority in the case where local areas have neglected their responsibility to plan and zone for the future development of their local municipality.

Another provision is that such authority be given only after a specified period of time had elapsed within which the municipality could fulfill their responsibility did they suggest that if no local progress had been made in this area that counties be given the authority to step in and fill the vacuum.

The tax base study committee and the industrial development committee of the Board of Supervisors are expected to meet June 5 with the special committee of the Board to discuss the fate of the property mapping and assessment equalization programs.

Other Business
In other business at the industrial development committee it was reported that the county water study is still in the underground phase. It is hoped that the county-wide sewage study will be contracted early in June. No progress was noted on the refuse disposal study application which was submitted to the State Department of Health in February of this year.

A recent amendment to the planning enabling laws requires that the county planning board review all new zoning ordinances and any changes to existing ordinances where located within 500 feet of any county or state highway, county or state park, and county or state owned land on which a public building or institution is situated.

The county planning board must review and report on such changes to the appropriate local authorities. Although the county review is mainly advisory, a two-thirds vote of the local agency is needed to overrule the county review.

Speaker Lauds D and H Society

Upwards of 97 members and friends were in attendance for the first annual dinner meeting of the Delaware and Hudson Canal Historical Society Sunday night at Ski Minne.

William V. Shannon, New York Times editorial writer, spoke on "How New Is the New Conservation?" He discussed the blossoming public awareness of the need to save what "we have before it is gone and can never be recaptured."

Shannon emphasized the importance of "husbanding our resources now" and commended such organizations such as the Historical group for the part being played in the national conservation effort.

Robert Gannon reported on publicity and restoration committees while Dr. Virgil DeWitt, chairman of the arts and history committee, noted progress in amassing information concerning the old canal. He asked everyone with historical data or memorabilia make them available to the committee.

Romeo Muller, board chairman, conducted the brief business meeting which included a treasurer's report by Clarence Hansen who added a plea for new members. Seven were signed during the course of the evening.

A CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION REPORT

by
S. James Matthews

A Constitutional Convention Report
by S. James Matthews

The Liberal Party, through its three delegates to the Constitutional Convention, last week unfolded its plan for periodic legislative and congressional apportionment. The proposition was made less than a week after a three-man Federal Court ruled that the present New York congressional districting is unconstitutional.

The plaintiffs in that lawsuit were both ranking members of the Liberal Party. The introduction of the reapportionment procedure to the Convention was therefore quite natural and expected.

The news value was not that a formula was introduced but, rather, the content of that proposal. Some very fundamental innovations are embraced within its provisions.

The Liberal Party delegates contend that the apportionment of legislative and congressional seats should be placed in the hands of a commission of distinguished citizens. At the present time this function is left to the legislature itself.

Alex Rose, venerable vice-chairman and long-time leader of the Liberals, remarked that "a surgeon does not perform an operation on himself." Neither, contends Rose, should the legislature pass upon its own districts.

It is argued that the legislature is a very closely-knit group; an exclusive club. Attempts might be made to make safe districts for incumbents. Further, there has been a practice in the past to so arrange the districts so as not to include two incumbent legislators in the same district, thereby increasing the possibility of a primary contest.

The Liberal plan would call for a group of college presidents to select a list of individuals of high stature who would be well-known throughout the state. For a relatively large group, certain legislative leaders would select a small committee to perform the task of redistricting.

The mention of college presidents, of course, has a good public relations connotation. Supposedly, they are well insulated from politics.

Critics of the plan say that, for the most part, these academicians are liberal in their thinking. Not liberal with a capital L, but in political philosophy. To some this might give one political party a preference.

More fundamentally, however, is the fact that any group selected as a result of the formula is completely insulated from the control of the ballot box. Legislators who do a poor job are refused reelection by the electorate. The college presidents and their choices do not seek election and the voter is unable to show displeasure.

More and more, the colleges

Teamster Head Asks Thruway Bargaining Vote

Theodore G. Daley, secretary-treasurer of Teamster Local Union 445, has petitioned the New York State Thruway Authority for a collective bargaining election to determine what employee organization really represents Thruway workers.

Daley, in a letter to Thruway Authority Chairman R. Burdell Bixby, asked for the election under the provisions of the New Public Employees Collective Bargaining Bill, recently passed by the New York State Legislature. The Teamster official noted in his letter to Chairman Bixby that "other organizations claiming representation of Thruway workers should be invited to join Local 445 on the ballot."

Daley said "the Bill is far from perfect but many of its imperfections are negotiable items at the bargaining table and it represents a definite improvement in the field of public employee relations." Commenting on the recent protest demonstrations being staged by New York State Employees Council 50, Daley said, "We don't have to hire Madison Square Garden to incite mass hysteria or picket legislative leaders, who have worked honestly to improve the bargaining position of public employees."

The Teamster leader said, "The current word barrage being laid down by Council 50 and the Civil Service Employees Association does nothing to improve wages, working conditions, or benefits but rather it serves as a smoke screen to hide a monumental lack of effort by these alleged labor organizations."

Daley's Union has been actively engaged in organizing workers on the Super Highway and now claims clear cut majority among the toll and maintenance workers employed by the Authority.

In conclusion, Daley praised the patience of the Teamster members employed by the Thruway and said, "We are now ready to let the ballot box decide whether Thruway workers want representation by a labor union or a company union."

and universities of the state are seeking state and federal assistance. Legislators and Congressmen vary in their attitudes as to whether the private higher education sector is deserving of additional financial assistance. Being human, having positions demanding further monetary help from some source can we expect theoretical neutrality which forms the basis for the proposal?

Travia Enters Controversy on Court Reforms

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Anthony J. Travia, president of the state Constitutional Convention, has stepped into the controversial court reform issue with the recommendation that the Surrogate Courts and the Court of Claims be consolidated with the State Supreme Court.

Travia, Democratic speaker of the state Assembly, issued the recommendation through a spokesman after an Appellate Division judge noted Travia's support of court reform.

Justice Bernard Botin, presiding judge of the Appellate Division, First Department, New York City, said in Rochester Wednesday that Travia is in favor of major changes in the state's court system.

Botin was authorized to use Travia's name, a spokesman for the legislator said.

The spokesman added that Travia backs state payment of the cost of the entire court structure, if it can be shown that the state can bear the cost without undue burden.

Travia said he also supports the consolidation of the New York City criminal and civil courts "to make that court part of a statewide district court."

The district court, Travia said, should include all inferior courts, such as those of justices of the peace, and its judges should be elected, rather than appointed.

Botin, a delegate-at-large to the convention, spoke at a meeting sponsored by the Rochester-area chapter of the Committee for Modern Courts and by the Civic Development Council of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce.

In addition to the Travia recommendation about the establishment of a district court, Botin said that peace justices cannot do their jobs properly without the services of supporting personnel — district attorneys, court reporters and public defenders.

"The bail decision, the sentencing function and the trial decision itself are speculative and made in the blind," Botin said. "And most likely, they are often unconstitutional in the light of the recent U.S. Supreme Court decisions."

Impatient Bandit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Barbara Chanman, 27, was at work as teller of a savings and loan office when an impatient bandit who was easy to please came in.

She dug for money as the holdup demanded, and he finally cut in: "Oh, hell — that's enough."

Later Donald M. Stutsman, 39, surrendered to police and was held on suspicion of staging the holdup. Police said $415 was taken in the robbery Wednesday.

Juveniles Due In Court on Greene Charges

Investigation of extensive damage at the Coxsackie school Wednesday by Leeds State Police BCI officers and local authorities resulted in charges of malicious mischief being filed against four juveniles.

State Police said damage to the school, most of it resulting from smashing windows in the building, was estimated in the neighborhood of $850. The four juveniles, whose ages range from eight to 13 years, will be petitioned into Family Court, troopers said.

The vandalism was reported last Thursday by school authorities.

Bruhn Denies Motion to Set Aside Verdicts

A motion to set aside verdicts totaling $60,000 in an automobile negligence action brought by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Slater and their daughter, Joyce Edna Slater, against the Town of Rochester, has been denied by Supreme Court Justice Louis G. Bruhn.

The verdicts returned by a jury in Supreme Court, resulted from an accident Dec. 20, 1963, when the Slater car, driven by Mrs. Slater, struck a tree after crossing a small Town of Rochester bridge at Accord which plaintiffs allege contained defective planking.

Joyce Edna Slater, daughter, received severe facial injuries. She was awarded $50,000. Mrs. Slater, also injured, was awarded $7,000 and Mr. Slater $3,000. James A. Murray of Ellenville appeared for the plaintiffs and N. LeVan Haver for the defendant Town of Rochester.

Haver, on behalf of defendant, moved to set aside the verdicts as against the weight of evidence and as excessive. The motion was heard Wednesday afternoon.

Settle Action Report Case Partially Tried

A negligence action brought by Ferdinand Rodriguez against Dr. Charles Rosenstock and the Ellenville Hospital was settled after being partially tried. Plaintiff alleged there had been negligence on the part of defendant while she was a patient at the hospital in November 1959. Admitted to the hospital Nov. 22, 1959, she died on the early morning on November 23.

The case was being heard before Supreme Court Justice Louis G. Bruhn and a jury when settlement was reached and the jury dismissed from further consideration of the matter. George L. Campo Jr., and Sol Lefkowitz were attorneys of record for plaintiff and defendant. Andrew J. Cook of Cook, Tucker and Dwyer appeared for defendant. Taken up for trial before Justice Bruhn and a jury Tuesday was an automobile negligence action brought by Duane Winnie and others against Kenneth J. Haass. The action arises out of an automobile accident on Route 9 on February 24, 1963 in which plaintiff was injured. George Beck of Ewig and Beck appears for plaintiff and Levinson, Jenkins and Cassidy for defendant. Plaintiff Winnie alleges that injuries about the head has left him with severe headaches and that he suffered blurred vision.

Business Mirror Reflections

Weariness, Frustration
Binds Nation's EconomyBy JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — A sense of weariness and frustration seems to pervade the analyses, reports and forecasts, both public and private, of the nation's economy.

Mixed with this is a great deal of uncertainty as to what's going on now, and even more concerning what will take place in the future. This uncertainty and concern is not fear. But it is causing worries.

For the record, the consensus, led by the administration itself, is for a renewed economic expansion later this year. There is a tendency, though, to push back the resumption date to December from June. And increasingly you can detect brave fronts but hear hollow voices dispatch forecasts with lifeless words.

The news lately has been bad. Mammoth efforts of the administration and the Federal Reserve to get the economy moving aren't showing expected results. The economy is misbehaving, not critically but disturbingly.

At the root are defense expenditures and a probable record budget deficit, forecast at anywhere from about $8 billion to $45 billion. There is a brooding feeling that we haven't been told all about these Vietnam expenditures and that the figure, preposterous as it seems, cannot be entirely discounted.

These increasing costs might also lead to a tax increase, not so much to hold down an economy that shows no signs of trying to escape as to pay the big bill.

Another major problem is that business and consumers aren't using money the way they used to. Consumers are banking 6.5 per cent of their disposable income, a very high figure, and so retail sales are off.

Business, throttled last year by tight money, is trying now to tie up enough credit to avoid being caught short again, and so pressure is being put on long-term loans all over again in a manner reminiscent of last year.

Perhaps because of this cautionary hoarding of credit, the Fed, which regulates the money supply, must ponder still more moves while admitting its past attempts have not been completely successful.

Gardner Ackley, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers and the man who must worry about all these problems, stoutly holds to his forecast of expansion later this year but he hardly disguises his concern.

Among those concerns is the resumption of price increases after a six-month lull. In April the consumer price index made its biggest jump in half a year.

And the Labor Department warns that food prices might also resume their upward course.

Housing, the industry that was supposed to benefit most from looser credit hasn't rebounded, despite glowing forecasts and premature conclusions. It is still in trouble. The April rate of construction, if sustained, would mean 1.2 million units this year, not the 1.6 million forecast.

The balance of payments situation also continues poor. The payments for the Vietnam war, of course, are a major factor in this excess of expenditures abroad over foreign spending here. As a result, the U.S. gold supply is very low.

The stock market has taken its knocks also, not only from sellers who have kept some blue chips depressed and have recently tarnished the glamor stocks, but from highly esteemed critics such as William McChesney Martin, Fed chairman. He suggested that unrestrained speculation by institutions can be poisonous.

Viewed from a distance, in context, maybe the news isn't as bad as it looks. Events change, and news has a way of rearranging itself quickly to paint brand-new pictures.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market recovered early Thursday in active trading.

Gainers outnumbered losers and the industrial average made a moderate advance.

The market was rebounding from six straight days of decline. Much of the improvement was due to "bargain hunting" by traders who picked up stock at reduced prices, analysts said.

Another factor was hope for acceptance of an armistice proposal in the Israeli-Arab crisis. IBM and Xerox snapped back about 4 points each in routine moves. Polaroid rose nearly 4.

Eastern and United Airlines gained 2 each.

Du Pont cut an early 1-point loss to a fraction. Anaconda rose nearly 2. Zenith and Raytheon a point each.

Steels, Motors and Electronics were mostly higher.

Massey-Ferguson opened on 10,200 shares, unchanged at 20 1/2.

General Motors rose 1/4 to 76 1/2 on 3,300 shares. Opening blocks included: Xerox, off 1 at 278 on 3,500 shares; Anaconda up 1 1/2 at 92 1/2 on 3,700; International Paper, unchanged at 30 on 3,000; and General Motors, up 2 1/2 at 100 on 2,700.

On Wednesday The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell 2.0 to 320.8.

Prices were mixed on the American Stock Exchange.

Temporary-Help Stocks

Q) "I want to buy stock in companies that supply temporary workers. Will you mention one or two well-managed companies making good gains and profits?" N. C.

A) You are interested in a comparatively new type of business which seems to hold considerable promise for the future. Two related issues which I like are Manpower, Inc. and Kelly Services. To my limited knowledge each is well managed and fulfills a definite need. Of the two, Manpower is older and larger but Kelly appears recently to be growing faster. Both have established good records and have been profitable stocks to own over the past few years.

Each issue has moved up to all-time OTC peaks above 30 but the earnings multiples do not seem particularly high if past growth rates are to be maintained. I think the risk here is that boom demand for temporary help may lessen if

makes wrinkles diminish
or vanish in 2 weeks

With a substance new to cosmetics, named Genava, aging skin can start looking younger and younger—not older and older.

After a two-week trial on a selected group of women, a noted dermatologist reports on the ingredients in Genava:

"Disappearance of small wrinkles was accomplished in two-week period; even the very deepest wrinkles showed very great improvement."

Dr. W. P. also comments, "the small superficial wrinkles responded dramatically." And he adds that the skin was "more translucent and smoother in appearance." These results are nothing short of amazing. And it took a new cosmetic compound to do it.

Genava was developed by the trustworthy Nina laboratory. Designed to be used twice daily—under make-up and overnight—it is absorbed instantly by the skin. Start using Genava today. In just two weeks your wrinkles will vanish or diminish greatly. Skin becomes more translucent, smoother. You will look gloriously younger! 1.55 oz., $3.50; 4 oz., $5.00.

Miller Urges UCCC Action

Hurley's 2nd District GOP candidate for the County legislature, Frank L. Miller, a prime mover in urging State action to build the Kingston-Rhinecliff bridge, said today it is time for local legislators to "push for a first class Community College as hard and as fast as possible."

"The bridge has proved its worth to the 2nd District many times over," Miller said. "A top-ranking Community College will have value to the District far beyond the value of any bridge that will ever be built anywhere."

Candidates Agree

Miller said his fellow GOP candidates, S. Robert Kelder Sr., of Marletown, Richard D. Nace, and Lester C. Elmendorf, both of Ulster, were in complete agreement on the UCCC program.

He said the Board of Supervisors had in his opinion been "too conservative" in their Community College thinking. "Republicans are for action on necessary things, and the UCCC is as necessary a thing for County development as a person can name," Miller said.

As a member of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce, the Hurley nominee initiated and circulated the first petitions for the Kingston bridge and made several trips to Albany to interest legislators and New York State Bridge Authority officials in its construction. He contacted hundreds of property owners himself and succeeded in gaining over 17,000 signatures for the Bridge in Ulster and Dutchess Counties.

He is now president of the Hurley Lions Club, and a member of the Marletown Sportsmen's Club, the John Burroughs Natural History Society, the American Ordnance Association, and several other civic associations.

In Normandy Push

A thrice-wounded veteran of the Normandy invasion and five campaigns across northern France, Belgium and western Germany, Miller entered the Army in February 1942 and was one of the first servicemen selected to form the newly-developed tank destroyer units. He holds the French Croix de Guerre, the Belgian Fourragere, the Bronze Star, the Distinguished Unit Citation, and three Purple Hearts. He earned a battlefield commission for his leadership in combat.

He has been a Hurley resident since 1946 and is now district manager of the Arboreal Association, division of Chemtree Corporation, a firm which has developed light-weight nuclear shielding materials in addition to specializing in tree care.

Four Eyes Best to Flag Waiter

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Who should give the food order to the waiter in a restaurant when a man and his wife are dining out?

I always thought the gentleman ordered for both his lady and himself. My husband says he doesn't know where I ever got an idea like that.

Also, if additional service is needed, my husband feels it is just as much my place to get the attention of the waiter as it is his. It makes me feel too aggressive, and even lacking in respect for my husband as a man if I try to catch the waiter's eye.

I will do what is correct, but I would appreciate knowing what, in your opinion, is correct. Everywhere I go I see women giving their orders to waiters, and even flagging them down, as if there were no man present.

WILLING TO LEARN

DEAR WILLING: In most restaurants, the waiter will turn to the lady with pencil poised and ask for her order—in which case she gives it to him. But to be ultra-impeccably socially correct, the gentleman should order for the lady and himself. As for "flagging down the waiter"—that's also the gentleman's job, but since four eyes are better than two, I'd waive this rule. (O. K. Amy?)

DEAR ABBY: In regard to the girl who was "ashamed" of her legs because they were shapeless: I am now in my fifties and I have had ugly legs all my life. (I was pathologically bowlegged.) In addition to that, I was 5-feet-10, skinny, and flat-chested. Fortunately, I learned young that my attitude toward life meant more than the shape of my body, and while there wasn't much I could do about changing my body, there was a lot I could do about changing my attitude.

I did as much as I could toward making myself attractive. I kept my hair clean and nicely groomed and I dressed as well as I could. I developed a sense of humor which has never let me down.

I married a wonderful man who is 5 inches shorter than I am but he seems proud to take me places with heels on yet! We have a lovely home and many good friends. We have married children and grandchildren. And I have had a good life because I learned to make the most of what I had.

AN OLD TEXAS GAL

DEAR ABBY: I am a teen-age boy who has seen legs like "Ashamed's." Is there anything wrong with a girl trying to improve her appearance? If someone asks for your advice on losing weight would you tell her to thank God she has enough food to get overweight on? That girl who wrote to you wanted some advice on how to improve her shapeless legs, and what did you give her? A sermon on how she should be glad she has two good legs because there are so many teenagers who are crippled?

I think you should apologize to that girl and give her some good advice if you have any.

PETER, THE GIRL WATCHER

DEAR PETER: If my "sermon" was out of order, I apologize. I'm all for "improving" oneself whenever possible but in this girl's case, the only "advice" I could offer was to thank God she was healthy, and to learn to live with her shapeless limbs.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "LILA": Most men want to be gentlemen, but some women won't give them the opportunity. I have heard more than one gentleman comment on what a pleasure it is to find a woman who actually sits in the automobile and waits for him to open the door and help her out.

7-Division Memorial Day March

Parade Dedicated to Fallen Heroes

A seven-division parade dedicated to those who gave their lives for their country, with special emphasis on those who died in the Vietnam conflict, will be a highlight of this city's Memorial Day observance on Tuesday, May 30 sponsored by the Kingston Veterans' Association. Observance of the 75th anniversary of the White Eagle Benevolent Society of Kingston, proved a gala event that was attended by more than 300 persons including church dignitaries and public officials.

The diamond jubilee banquet was held May 21 after a special noon high Mass at the Immaculate Conception Church with the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Joseph Sieczek officiating.

Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick was the guest speaker. He spoke of the Vietnam situation and said that organizations such as the White Eagle Society "are the backbone of America." Bernard Bujak, chairman of the event, expressed his appreciation for all who participated in the ceremonies.

A new feature of the pre-parade ceremonies will be a 21-gun salute by the 1st Battalion 156th Artillery, NYARNG and the appearance in the parade of the Capt. William Dale O'Brien detachment of Young Marines (MCL) of Albany, will be a highlight.

In the event of rain on Tuesday the parade will be canceled, and if weather is inclement and threatening final decision will be broadcast over local radio stations about 12 noon.

All color guards will mass between 1:45 and 2 p. m. across from Academy Green in front of Governor Clinton Hotel. Thomas Hughes of VFW Post 1386 is director of color guards. The National anthem by American Federation of Musicians Local 215, Kingston marching band, will open the pre-parade ceremonies.

Introductions by Harry N. Thayer of station WGHQ will precede the opening prayer by the Rev. Robert T. Shellenberger, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church and chaplain of Ulster Detachment Marine Corps League. The Rev. Mr. Brown will deliver the pre-parade address followed by music-America by the AFM Local 215 marching band.

BOCES Students Take Top Place In Car Contest

Henry Hopper, district superintendent of schools and Michael Aronica, vocational director of the Board of Cooperative Educational Services of New Paltz, announce that two students from the educational center in New Paltz took first place in a Plymouth regional trouble-shooting car repair contest which was held at Valley Stream L. I. Saturday.

Richard Palermo of Highland and Charles Hansen of Kerhonkson, under the instruction of Rudolph W. Brodsky of Highland, competed against 27 schools of the New York and Long Island area. Placing first they were awarded a trophy, a Sun Timing light and the opportunity to participate in the national finals which will be held in Detroit in June.

The local sponsoring dealer was Young's Motors Route 9W, Milton, which furnished a new Plymouth for practice and competition. Malfunctions are planned in the automobile for the competition. Participants were required to get the car running with precision.

Freeman Adds 'Nancy' Strip

More than 38 years have passed since a red-haired, quiet-spoken young cartoonist named Ernie Bushmiller started drawing a comic strip about a beautiful, black-haired young lady named Fritz Ritz. And more than 22 years have passed since he created a chubby, pug-nosed, very merry little girl named Nancy, who came to live with her Aunt Fritz and proved to be such an irresistible little mischief-maker that she soon took over the leading role and the title-billing of the strip, and later, became the star of her own Sunday color comic feature.

One of Best Known

Today, Bushmiller's "Nancy" is one of the world's best-known and best-loved newspaper comics, bringing delighted laughter to the readers of more than 500 daily and Sunday papers in the U.S. and Canada, and almost 100 papers in 32 foreign countries.

The popular strip will appear in The Freeman starting Monday, May 29.

The talented artist with the unfailing sense of humor whose brain-child Nancy is, was born in New York City, in the borough of the Bronx, Aug. 24, 1905. He graduated from grammar school and attended New York's Theodore Roosevelt High School for six months before deciding he preferred art to further education. Since even an art student must eat, he got a job as a copy boy on the old New York Evening World, and attended night classes at the National Academy of Design.

After a year of art study, he began pestering the art editor of the paper for a chance to show his talents. His first published "work" was a crossword puzzle diagram, in the corner of which he carefully lettered his initials. He kept submitting ideas, and in 1922 his "Fritz Ritz" Strip made the grade and began its regular appearance in the Evening World. It was a success from the start, and when the paper ceased publication in 1931, Ernie signed a long-term contract with United Features Syndicate, Inc. The "Nancy" strip and Sunday page came into being in 1937, and have been going stronger and stronger ever since. Though Ernie's original heroine still continues to enchant and amuse readers in a separate "Fritz Ritz" Sunday page feature in many newspapers, she is far more famous now as Aunt Fritz in "Nancy."

Like many artists, Ernie works on a highly individualistic time-schedule. His working day usually starts in the late afternoon, and often continues until 2 a. m. or later. More than not, on both the daily strips and the Sunday pages, he starts by drawing the final (or, he calls it, "the pay-off gag") panel first, and then works backward to the beginning.

He has been happily married to a girl who, like himself, was born and brought up in the Bronx. They have no children, and the household revolves around a highly unpedigreed dog that Ernie describes as having a fox-terrier snout, Dalmatian legs and a collie tail. After years of residence in the Bronx, the Bushmillers moved to a comfortably rural home in the wooded countryside north of Stamford, Connecticut. Ernie blames his desertion of his native borough squarely on the family pet: "The pooch needed more room," he says.

ERNE BUSHMILLER

'Saint' Star Former Dropout

By GENE HANDSAKER

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "The Saint," a British mystery-adventure summer series, bowed in Sunday on NBC with a preposterous but tolerable tale called "The Death Game." This week the star was in Hollywood to get reacquainted.

Roger Moore is a onetime school dropout who grew up to co-star in movies with Lana Turner and Elizabeth Taylor. But he says candidly of those MGM days: "MGM was very happy with my later pictures — because I made them for Warner Brothers."

London-born, he is rock-jawed and stolidly handsome with what used to be called collar-and-cuffs features. Six feet two — early in the morning; by late afternoon I'm 5 feet 3" — he weighs 175 but looks thinner in person than the bulk he carried in the opening sequence.

This, he said, showing the slackness under his belt, may be due to a recent spot of dieting. "When I didn't sit down for two weeks."

Moore quit school in London at 15, became a film extra and was told by a director he should try an acting career. He studied at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art, worked in the Cambridge Arts Theatre and at 18 joined the British army, assigned principally to staging shows.

After his army discharge and an unsuccessful fling at comedy and singing, he came to New York. TV leads there led to MGM, "The Last Time I Saw Paris" with Liz and "Diana" with Lana.

Moore starred later in the "Ivanhoe" TV series and appeared in 14 "Maverick" segments but since 1962 has been playing "The Saint." Seventy-one black-and-white segments ran for three years in 100 U.S. cities and are still showing in 80 countries, he reported.

The new series, in color, is said to be the first to go from syndication to network. Plots are based on Leslie Charteris' 35 novels starring fictional, globe-trotting Simon Templar, known as "The Saint." Long-time listeners may recall radio versions starring Barry Sullivan, Vincent Price, Brian Aherne and Tom Conway.

The new series has been completed by a London company of which Moore is half owner. He's preparing three movie scripts for himself — "but none are what I want to do, which is suspense comedy without comedians. Stories like "Charade" and "To Catch a Thief" are awfully difficult to find."

Hint Vandals Started Upstate School Blaze

ARCADE, N.Y. (AP) — A fast-spreading fire police said might have been started by vandals swept a wing of the central school today in this village south of Buffalo and caused extensive damage, plus cancellation of classes.

Police Chief Lloyd Warner said evidence of vandalism was found in the sprawling, two-story building, which is a combination of new and old.

A school official said an attempt had been made to start a fire in a wing not damaged by the flames.

Classes for the 1,450 elementary and secondary pupils were cancelled. The fire was discovered at about 6 a.m.

Police said the fire apparently started in a stairway in the elementary wing, constructed about six years ago.

The flames raced through a corridor, ate into classroom partitions and through the roof.

Smoke and water damaged other sections.

No estimate of the damage was available.

Hurley Board Meets

The regular monthly meeting of the Town of Hurley board will be held at the West Hurley Firehouse 8 p. m. May 29.

Testifies She Saw Widziewicz Choking Sandra

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y. (AP)

— Constance Cippollone has testified that she saw Alfred Widziewicz Jr. — then her boy friend — choking the 22-year-old mother he is accused of slaying.

She said Widziewicz had intended to rob the woman so that he and the witness could get married.

Miss Cippollone, 19, was a prosecution witness Wednesday at Widziewicz' trial in Dutchess County Court on a first-degree murder charge in the strangulation of Mrs. Sandra Boyster, 22. Mrs. Boyster, who was killed in her bedroom last Aug. 5, had let Widziewicz, 20, and Miss Cippollone stay at her apartment while her husband was away on duty as a Navy seaman.

Miss Cippollone testified that after Widziewicz choked Mrs. Boyster, he said: "I think she's dead. She's blue."

Several days before the slaying, the witness testified, "Al said he would knock her unconscious and take her money."

Miss Cippollone said she left the bedroom after she saw Widziewicz wrap his hands around Mrs. Boyster's neck and the two began to struggle.

She said that Widziewicz, of Naugatuck, Conn., had argued previously with Mrs. Boyster about money and about his finding a job.

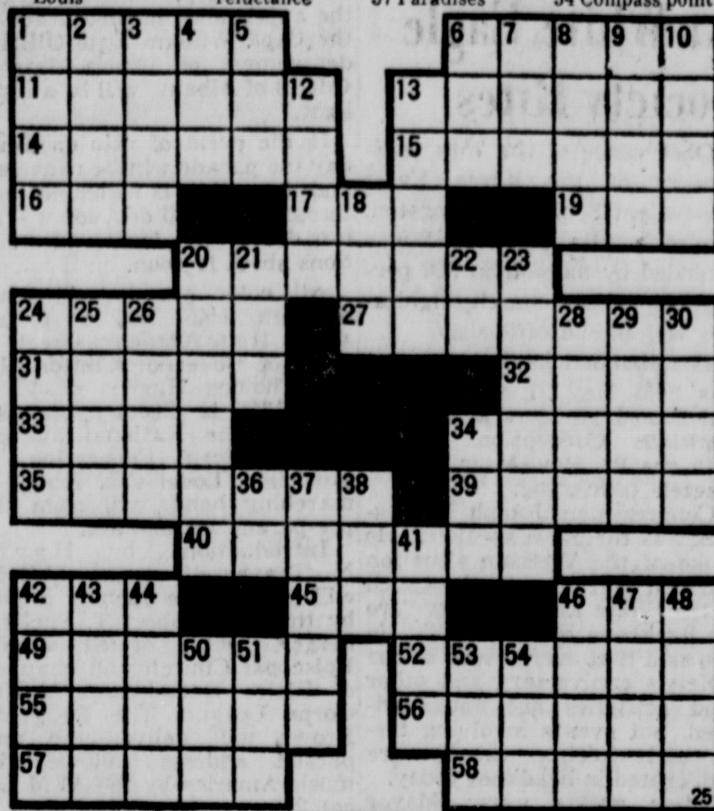

Judge Raymond C. Baratta granted Miss Cippollone immunity from possible prosecution to get her to testify. Her attorney, Ely Gellert, had requested it.

Field Worker Relates Trials of Laos Labor

By BOB POOS

SAM THONG, Laos (AP) — Poa Buell is an American engaged in helping the Laotian people in their struggle against communism. He is also a realist who knows the task will never be simple or easy and will take a long, long time.

Edward "Pon" Buell, 54, once a resident of Hamilton, Ind., came to Laos as a field worker for the International Volunteer Service. He is now coordinator for the American aid program in northeastern Laos.

Buell is gray-haired and has a face and arms burned dark brown by the sun. He is a master of the dialects of the Lao and other hill tribes with whom he works.

He is aware of both the potential and limitations of the people.

Yet he is rather optimistic about stopping the march of communism in Laos without a massive American commitment such as in Vietnam.

"This is the first year that I've really thought that we were winning," he says. "It's been the best year we've ever had. I've got hope now."

"I've learned a hell of a lot since I've been here and most of what I've learned has been from the Communists."

"Down on the PFJ — Plain of Jars — I saw them giving out some medicine and building some schools and going out to win over the people as well as fighting.

"Right then I figured the only way to beat them at this game was to do it better."

Buell led a march of some 70-100 Laotian refugees in 1961 when the Communist Pathet Lao and North Vietnamese launched an offensive that was successful in seizing the Plain of Jars in north-central Laos.

There was no such place as Sam Thong then but it now has a flourishing airfield, hospital of more than 120 beds complete with operating room, dental facilities, doctors and nurses comparable to an American Army field hospital.

The town of 5,000 is headquarters for Laos' 2nd Military Region and the home of Gen. Vang Phae, a Meo who has the reputation of being one of the toughest, bravest officers in the Laotian army.

Buell roams this territory on foot and in airplane, supervising the building of schools, wells, dispensaries and overseeing numerous other projects. He believes in guiding the people, not doing their work for them.

"It helps a man's pride when he accomplishes something himself," Buell said. "You destroy his pride when you do for him what he should be doing for himself."

"I think we've accomplished a lot here and we started with nothing and did it right in the face of our enemy."

"Now we've got 15,000 kids in schools and we've got 16 dispensaries going. Here at the hospital we've trained 350 medics.

The Pathet Lao have killed 48 of them and that's an indication of how successful the medics have been. Seems like you always lose the good ones, the brave ones who really get out and work close with the people."

"The Pathet Lao last year killed a young American working with Buell."

"He was a good kid," Buell snapped. "I was grooming him to be my replacement whenever I leave this place. But they got him."

"Manpower is one of our worst problems. Our losses have been high and more than half of our fighting men are 16 years old or younger. But we can win if they give us the stuff."

Would he like to see the government put a couple of regiments of the regular army in his area?

"When they do, that's when I go home. These people will do it by themselves."

Buell came to Laos because his wife had died and as a semi-retired farmer he had time on his hands.

"Now here it is 7½ years later," he chuckled, "and I haven't even seen Laos—never been down south. But they can't fool me about these people or these hills up here. I've walked over every damned one of the hills and I've met the people."

"Some day I'll go home, people there probably consider me more Laos than American, but right now I've got work to do. Excuse me."

He lit a cigarette and went swinging off up the hill to his hospital.

He stopped for a moment and talked rapidly in Meo to a soldier who had a bandaged foot and looked to be about 15.

Pact Averts Lottery Delay

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y. (AP) — A tentative contract agreement was reached early today between a pressmen's union local and Moore Business Forms, which prints the state's lottery tickets, a union official said.

Members of Local 728 of the Pressmen's Union had voted to strike the company, thus causing a possible delay in the distribution of lottery tickets and a corresponding delay in the first lottery drawing, scheduled for July.

Herbert Maudsley, Local 728 president, said that the agreement was reached after an all-day negotiation session Wednesday that included state mediator Joseph English and federal mediator Thomas R. Colosi.

The three-year contract was subject to ratification by the local's 367 members at a Sunday meeting.

The contract called for a 60-cent an hour increase over three years for pressmen and a 45-cent hourly hike for their assistants. It also would provide an extra holiday and improved fringe benefits, Maudsley said.

Pressmen now receive an average of $4.02 an hour and their assistants, $2.76 an hour.

The old contract expired Feb. 28 and the pressmen had been working since then without a new pact during negotiations.

Maudsley also said that union members had refused to work overtime following the termination of their contract.

The freeze on overtime was lifted early today following the contract agreement, he said. The pressmen will put in all the time needed to complete the printing of the tickets for the first drawing, Maudsley said.

Indict Borden Officials, Price Conspiracy Cited

NEW YORK (AP) — Two Borden Co. officials have been indicted for perjury in what the District Attorney says was an "enormous conspiracy" by milk companies that raised milk prices for millions of housewives. Manhattan Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan said Wednesday that 19 large processing companies conspired with some labor officials and others to raise retail and wholesale milk prices in New York from Sept. 1, 1965 to last March 20.

"The plan of the conspirators according to the indictment was to accomplish this objective by dividing the city into sections and raising the price of milk in one section at a time," Hogan said. According to his aides, prices in the city now vary between 22 cents a quart of milk to more than 30 cents.

Hogan announced that the grand jury had indicted Charles Doherty, 59, of Yonkers, a vice president of Borden's Milk and Ice Cream Co., and Michael Cammarasano, 53, a vice president of the company's Dairy Sealed Division.

Levitt Cautions Con Con

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) — State Comptroller Arthur Levitt cautioned the State Constitutional Convention today against trying to create super-governments in the five major metropolitan areas of the state.

Levitt, in a speech for the Convention's Committee on Intergovernmental Relations, said the idea looks good on paper, "but it is against the grain of the American people to be mandated into super-governments."

The comptroller also criticized public authorities as "a fourth branch of government, but one without control by the people." Public authorities that continue to operate at a deficit, he said, should be brought under the state's "budgetary and legislative controls."

The super-government theory, as explained by Levitt, calls for the organization of the metropolitan area governments into a consolidated form, capable of cooperating with the state in the solution of critical social problems — such as education, housing, transportation and public health.

"I think we will consolidate governmental functions through evolution," he said, "not through conventions."

Conditions are not as bad or complex as the critics say, Levitt asserted. The thousands of special districts serving suburban communities are not separate governments, he said, each is administered by the town board.

Returns to Combat After Jungle Trek

By GEORGE MCARTHUR

SAIGON (AP) — The Phantom jet fighter was careening wildly across the night sky over North Vietnam and the only thing left to do was reach beneath the seat and pull the handle that pilots call "the next-of-kin ring."

But after a night in the jungle and one of the most harrowing rescues of the Vietnam war, sandy-haired Dave Baldwin, 24, and only two years out of the University of Indiana, is returning to combat and cheerfully intent on making a long career in the Air Force.

Flow to Saigon today, Baldwin telephoned his wife waiting in Dunkirk, Ind., with their 3-month-old son he has never seen. He told her he counts himself the luckiest of men.

Monday night Baldwin took off on his 57th combat mission over North Vietnam, in the second seat of a Phantom behind a pilot now missing in action.

"It was a little after dark and we were inbound on the target," he related in an interview.

"We had been picking up anti-aircraft fire all the way in. It was about as bad as I've ever seen it. I remember seeing it in front of us and looking out and seeing tracers everywhere. There was no place to go but to press on in."

"Then the aircraft commander said 'Dave, we've been hit.' The aircraft gave a little shudder but I didn't think we were hit bad."

"Then he said we were losing fuel. Then in another few seconds we began to lose our flight controls. It kept getting worse."

Baldwin and the pilot decided to risk a few more minutes in the bucking plane and try for the coast, where chances of rescue were infinitely better.

The Phantom veered and snapped wildly. Only the rudder was left and the pilot was fighting it manually, which requires about 150 pounds of pressure. The plane was losing altitude and making only slight headway.

"They decided to turn on the after burner to try for more altitude, although its bright flash in the night sky would certainly draw more anti-aircraft fire."

"The anti-aircraft fire opened up again then," Baldwin said. "We lost a piece of rudder. Whether we were hit again I don't know. We were still losing altitude but fighting to make it across the one big ridge line that was between us and the sea."

"It became apparent we weren't going to make it. The pilot said 'Okay, Dave, this is as far as we can get. I'll try and get her as stable as possible.' Then he said 'Okay, Dave, we've got to get out,' and I reached for the ejection ring."

That was the last word Baldwin had from the pilot, whose identity is being withheld until his next of kin are notified.

"I pulled the ejection handle and the next thing I knew I was hanging from a tree," said Baldwin. "I saw the wrecked plane burning down the ridge line only about 150 or 200 yards away. The fire was so intense anyone around there could have seen me. I got free and tumbled down the slope. I wanted to get away from that fire."

Baldwin was in deep jungle northeast of Haiphong. He heard voices nearby and some sporadic firing. He couldn't see more than 15 feet. He clutched his rescue radio and stumbled through the undergrowth looking for a clearing.

A flight of propeller-driven Skyraiders came over and spotted the burning Phantom on the ridge. The leader radioed Baldwin that a helicopter was already in the air.

"I was elated," said Baldwin. "In the area we were in I didn't think we had any chance of being picked up at all."

For two hours he huddled in the jungle waiting for the chopper. When it came his hopes for freedom were dashed. Trying to find him, it was hit by ground fire. A crewman was wounded. The chopper began losing fuel. It had to leave. The circling Skyraider pilots also had to leave — after sending a message that another rescue attempt would be made at daybreak.

"It got pretty quiet around there for a while," Baldwin went on. "I was thinking of what to do. I would have tried everything possible before surrendering. Those people up there don't care for us."

Through the night he heard voices and random firing. He could see a distant village in the valley with many lights burning all night. At times people passed fairly close, but in the deep jungle they could not see him nor he them.

At dawn a heavy fog covered the area. Baldwin again thought rescue was impossible. But the Skyraiders showed up overhead and in an hour the fog began to lift. Baldwin thrashed through the jungle looking for a clearing, always clutching his small rescue radio. Finally he found a rocky elevation which gave him a tiny view of the sky — a small window high above his head with a few peripheral breaks in the trees.

"I heard the chopper and I heard them firing at it," said Baldwin. "I was trying to give him flying instructions to find me. The chopper never did see me. It finally got as close as it could and I told him to drop the penetrator" — the long cable for jungle rescues.

Baldwin scampered to it, jerked at it and missed. It started to rise and Baldwin said, "Oh, No! Oh, No!" Then the chopper pilot realized he hadn't made contact and dropped the penetrator again. The firing by then was very close.

Baldwin grasped the cable seat and started up, his head banging on the close-knit trees as he went up.

"That was the greatest feeling in the world," he said.

He was jerked into the chopper and fell exhausted to the floor. The crew quickly poked the machine gun back out the hatch and it was firing as they sped off.

But it wasn't over. The helicopter's copilot came back and told Baldwin they were low on fuel. They might not make the coast. Another rescue chopper was on the way.

"We started to throw everything overboard to lighten the load," said Baldwin. "As we came over the coast, we again came under fire. But we made it. We had only 25 gallons of fuel when we reached the ship, and that's not much for a chopper."

"They gave me a cup of hot coffee and a shot of brandy. That was mighty fine. I wouldn't have made it if my aircraft commander hadn't held that plane together for those extra minutes and the Navy hadn't made an all-out effort. I spent my time on that ship thanking those people."

Baldwin had landed on the guided-missile frigate Worden. He was transferred to the carrier Bon Homme Richard, where he was outfitted with a Navy officer's khaki uniform. He wore it proudly today.

GE Pulls Plug On Blankets

NEW YORK (AP) — The decision by General Electric Co. to pull the plug on its electric blanket operations, apparently hasn't turned off the enthusiasm of its competitors.

GE said Wednesday it was discontinuing manufacture of electric blankets because of a "continued lack of profit."

GE declined to give any sales or production figures.

Neither would some of GE's competitors, although all said they found their electric-blanket operations profitable and had no intention of discontinuing the line.

State police at Paramus said Burtz was alone in his car and was driving south on Route 95 when the accident occurred.

Reserves Bail Move In Plattekill Case

County Judge Raymond J. Mino reserved decision Wednesday on an application for bail in the cases of Mrs. Lorraine Strickland, 38, of town of Plattekill, and Donald Dunn, 34, of 138 Broadway, Newburgh.

Both are confined to jail on an attempted first degree murder arising out of a shotgun blast at the Strickland home in the early hours of March 31. When arraigned before Justice of the Peace Robert Ferrigan of Town of Kingston, following their apprehension April 3, they were committed to jail in lieu of $50,000 each.

Robert A. Ronder appeared before County Judge Mino at special term Wednesday and asked that the court set bail to supercede the justices court bail.

The shooting of Elmer Strickland, 38, husband of Lorraine Strickland, and father of seven, took place about 9 p. m. as he entered the front door of his southern Ulster home. Two shotgun blasts came out of the darkness as Strickland entered the house. The first blast struck him in the right arm leaving it practically useless, and in the stomach and bicep. As Strickland turned to flee the second shot barked and he was struck in the back.

Strickland made his way to a neighbor and was taken to St. Luke's Hospital in Newburgh.

At the time the shooting was termed the result of a "lover's triangle" case. Investigation by State Police resulted in the arrest of Mrs. Strickland and Dunn some 16 hours after the shooting. The gun was identified as a 12-gauge shotgun.

Ronder asked that bail for Mrs. Strickland, who has never

Dairymen Vote Price Hike Offer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department reported today that dairymen supplying the big New York-New Jersey Milk Marketing Area have voted to accept a price increase offered them by Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman.

The increase, made under terms of a Federal Milk Marketing Order, is 20 cents a hundredweight over the price level which otherwise would prevail under a pricing formula. This is equivalent to about one-half cent a quart.

Looks to Speak At Industrial Parley in Orange

NEWBURGH — C. David Looks, president of Mid-Hudson Pattern for Progress, Inc., will give the keynote address at an Industrial Opportunities Conference to be held here June 5, by Orange County Community College and the Board of Cooperative Educational Services.

Looks' speech will open the one-day conference for top and middle management personnel from area industries on current and future manpower requirements. The event will take place at the Holiday Inn, Route 211.

Announcement of the speaker was made today by Howard C. Smith Jr. of OOC, conference chairman.

Looks, a planning specialist with extensive experience, is the chief executive officer of Pattern for Progress, a privately financed, non-partisan planning, research and development organization that seeks to guide the growth of a seven-county region in Hudson River Valley.

MOON BUGGIES are in the planning stage, for transporting astronauts when they make lunar landings, hopefully by 1970. Uncertain about the quality of the moon's surface, scientists have devised some weird-looking crafts for moon use. One offering is the electric-powered buggy built by Boeing, at right, which would use woven-wire tires for traction in deep moon dust and for smooth rides over rocky, pitted ground. Also allowing for an irregular surface is the four-wheeled contraption above, designed by the Bendix Corporation. It makes use of a flexible outer rim to flatten the wheels and contour them to the moon's surface for added traction. Each wheel is powered individually by electric motors in the hubs. Top speed for both vehicles will be about 10 m.p.h.

Experts Believe Israel Has Edge

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. military experts believe Israel's armed forces, although outnumbered, could defeat the combined Arab armies if the big powers stay out.

These experts give the Israel an edge over the Arabs because of what was described as superior training and better equipment maintenance.

Israel's 300,000 soldiers and airmen stack up against some 400,000 men in the Arab states surrounding her, latest estimates indicate.

However, while Israel was said to be able to mobilize and deploy her 300,000 men in a matter of days, the Arab armies are believed to take a much longer time to muster.

Military specialists expect any open war would pit Israel against four Arab countries primarily—Egypt, Jordan, Syria and Lebanon, all of which immediately border on Israel.

Although Iraq and Saudi Arabia have pledged support, the American experts discount their probable effectiveness on the ground.

This is because Iraq has serious problems with rebellious Kurdish tribesmen and the Saudi-Arabians are embroiled in the Yemen civil war, where 40,000 Egyptian troops also are pinned down on the opposite side of the issue.

Some government sources, however, regard as an open question what Arab nations actually might be involved in a war with Israel.

Nearly all are sure Egypt would be joined by Syria in such a battle, but some think Saudi Arabia, Lebanon and Jordan—although forced by internal pressures to take a stance for Arab unity—are too closely aligned with the United States to actually put massive numbers of troops in the field against Israel.

U.S. military men believe Israel would have to array about 100,000 of her troops along the Sinai frontier where the main Egyptian thrust could be expected.

Meanwhile, it was said, Israel probably would have to keep a larger force along her northern and eastern frontiers facing Syria, Lebanon and Jordan.

Israel is only about 40 miles wide at some points in the north and a determined thrust by Jordan's army of 50,000 conceivably could cut the country in half.

American military experts rate the Jordanian army as about the best among the Arab nations.

Syria has about 60,000 men under arms. Of these, about 30,000 are believed deployed near Israel while the other 30,000 are held back deeper inside the country, apparently on guard against internal uprisings.

Lebanon has only 10,000 men and only about 1,500 of these are stationed adjacent to Israel. It is considered doubtful the Lebanese would make much of a contribution to the over-all Arab effort.

Egypt has 190,000 men, many of them already mobilized in the Sinai area.

The Israelis, it was understood, have about 150,000 of their 300,000 troops on active duty.

One big question bearing on the military effectiveness of the Arabs is how well their joint command might work. Such a structure has been in existence for several years.

But there are deep-seated rivalries among the Arab countries. Jordan broke diplomatic relations with Syria this week in a dispute over a mining incident along their common boundary.

Levy Ruling Due On Testimony

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — A military judge rules today on whether testimony on brutalities allegedly tolerated by the Green Berets in Vietnam can be admitted as evidence for the defense in the court-martial of Army Capt. Howard B. Levy.

Col. Earl V. Brown, the judge, recessed the trial Wednesday after a Special Forces combat veteran told of the Green Berets ignoring crimes committed against war prisoners by South Vietnamese soldiers.

Levy, 30, of Brooklyn, N.Y., a dermatologist at Ft. Jackson Army hospital, contends that orders for him to train the Special Forces medics were illegal. He is charged with disobeying orders and making disloyal statements designed to urge enlisted men to not go to Vietnam.

ANOTHER VICTIM—The body of Mrs. Wendy Sweet Jarboe (shown in file photo made at her wedding last month), 24, of suburban Falls Church, Va., was found in the trunk of her car at nearby National Airport, the FBI reported yesterday. Mrs. Jarboe, missing since last Thursday, was the second young woman in as many days to have died under mysterious circumstances. The body of Judith K. Robeson, research asst. to Sen. Frank Carlson (R-Kan.), was found Tuesday, beaten beyond recognition, in her apartment. Both women were 24 years old. There were no apparent links between the two cases. FILE PHOTO VIA UPI TELEPHOTO

Educators OK Library Aid

Philosophy that the Kingston City Schools support the Kingston City Library on a per pupil basis at a figure to be determined later was approved Wednesday night by resolution adopted at a special meeting of the Board of Education.

The board in another major action approved a resolution authorizing the expenditure of $5,400 for a summer school program in the Kingston School District Consolidated.

Arthur H. Withall, president of the board, presented the resolution to support the library. It was seconded by Harold Keator.

The action came as a result of prolonged discussions between the Kingston City Library Board and the school board. It was noted that the Board of Education's purpose is to help with the support of the present library facilities as a reference source for junior and senior high school students of the consolidated district.

The school board also has definite plans to maintain and improve the libraries which now exist in the three secondary schools involved—the Kingston High School, Myron

J. Michael Junior High School and the J. Watson Bailey Junior High School.

The city library trustees have agreed to seek the advice of teachers and administrators of the school district in the selection of new reference materials to be purchased for the public library.

The summer school program was initiated last year in the George Washington School for those children who are gifted and interested in music, drama, and art. The program this year will be presented at the George Washington School. In addition to this, there will be a remedial program undertaken at the John F. Kennedy School. This program is operated under federal funds.

The regular meeting of the Board of Education will take place Thursday, June 1 at 8:30 p.m. in the board office at the George Washington School on Wall Street.

Mrs. Organtini Cited by P-TA

A donation to the Jenkins Memorial Scholarship Fund of the New York State Congress of Parents and Teachers in honor of Mrs. Dorothy Organtini, a sixth grade teacher at the school.

The presentation of a pin and honorary life membership card to Mrs. Organtini was made by the P-TA President Robert A. Kurland. In making the award, Professor Kurland commented to almost 200 parents that Mrs. Organtini had been an outstanding teacher during the past 23 years of her tenure at the school and had done much for the children and parents that she had come in contact with. Her professional services, he said, were "far beyond the usual teacher-child relationship."

Mrs. Organtini is the former Dorothy Van Gaasbeck of Kingston. She attended School No. 6 and Kingston High School and graduated from the New Paltz State Teachers College. She and her husband Arthur live at 139 Tammany Street. Prior to her service at Kingston's School No. 7, she taught in the Saugerties School System. Next year, Mrs. Organtini will be transferred to the sixth grade at the new Edson School.

Knitted stockings were introduced in England and Europe during the 1500's.

Forest, recreation areas and state parks cover 117,980 acres in Indiana.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The fastest track stars could not begin to match the speed of some ocean fish. The swordfish, for example, has been clocked at 60 miles an hour, says The World Almanac. The tuna can swim at a remarkable 44 miles an hour, the dolphin at 37 and the salmon at 25. Flying fish often emerge from the water at 35 miles per hour and have been observed to glide in the air for over 40 seconds.

469 Attend 2nd Annual Dinner Of Supervisors

A social evening with local and New York City professional entertainment marked the second annual dinner of the Supervisors Association Wednesday night at the Villa Nueva at Plattekill where 469 supervisors, county officials and friends gathered.

Among the officials attending were Senator J. P. Rollison Jr., Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson, John Logan representing Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick's office and H. Clark Bell, delegate to the State Constitutional convention. There was a number of county legislator candidates present.

General chairman was Supervisor Thomas Shay Jr., of Lloyd. Supervisor Clarence C. Raichle, 12th ward, wicket chairman and the entertainment committee included Plattekill Supervisor Joseph Martorana and Gardiner Supervisor George Majestic.

Among the after dinner entertainers was Al Perry, New York comedian.

For many years the Ulster County Supervisors Association held annual dinners. The practice was suspended several years ago and was reinstated last year.

Up to Court

BRASILIA (AP) — The case of accused Nazi war criminal Franz Stangl rested today with Brazil's Supreme Court which must decide whether to honor extradition request by Austria and West Germany, both ruled legal by Brazil's prosecutor general Wednesday.

Stangl was arrested last February in Sao Paulo on a tip from the Jewish Documentation Center in Vienna. He commanded the Sobibor and Treblinka extermination camps.

Word of his arrest brought extradition requests from Austria, West Germany and Communist Poland.

paper flower of the year to Town Supervisor William R. West Jr. The sale will continue and end during the Memorial Day holiday here as Auxiliary members sell the bright blossoms, made by disabled veterans, on the village streets. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

HOLIDAY EVENT—Performing Arts of Woodstock will premier two one-act plays by James Prudeaux, former local actor and writer, during the Memorial Day holiday. The plays, which received wide acclaim during performances at the Cherry Lane Theatre and Sniffen Court Comedy Playhouse, New York City, last year, are The Bench and Postcards. Among the performers in the Woodstock production, playing May 26, 27 and 28 at 8:30 p. m. at the Little Theatre-off-the-Green, Tinker Street, are (l-r) Larry Cox, Jeffrey Fletcher, Ronald Radice, Mary Lou Paturel and Estelle Kattleson.

Eyes New Abort Bill To Pacify Critics

NEW YORK (AP) — Assemblyman Albert H. Blumenthal, D-Manhattan, said today he will resubmit his bill to liberalize the state's abortion law — this time including an immunity clause he hopes will resolve objections of the Roman Catholic Church.

He said he will pre-file a new version of his bill in the 1968 Legislature. The immunity clause would permit doctors, or hospitals operated by religious institutions, to refuse to perform an abortion if it is in conflict with their religious beliefs.

Blumenthal's abortion bill was killed in the last Legislature after the Roman Catholic bishops of New York State made an unprecedented appeal to all members of the Church to oppose the proposal.

The 38-year-old lawmaker later drew the wrath of his colleagues when he made a speech on the floor of the Assembly and urged them to keep "an open mind" despite the opposition of the Roman Catholic Church. The bill was subsequently killed in the Assembly's Codes Committee.

The Legislatures of Colorado and North Carolina have since approved similar bills, which have become law. The Colorado law contains an immunity clause aimed at protecting doctors and hospitals from malpractice suits should they refuse operations.

"I believe the immunity clause will pacify the opponents of abortion reform," Blumenthal said in his Manhattan law office. "If a doctor, or a hospital operated by a religious institution, believes that performing an abortion will violate religious beliefs then the immunity clause will provide an exemption from the law. I am very hopeful that this is the answer to the problem."

The lawmaker, who is a close ally of U.S. Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, said he has been making several speeches a week before groups in favor of reforming the abortion law.

TV, Radio Media Divided on News Of Lottery Wins

NEW YORK (AP) — Television and radio media currently are divided on broadcasting news about the New York State Lottery. It was disclosed Wednesday.

A survey of broadcasters by the New York Times showed a division as to the current interpretation of the laws, the newspaper said.

Those declaring a virtual blackout on news of the lottery include the National Broadcasting Co.; the American Broadcasting Co.; the Westinghouse Broadcasting Co., which owns WINS radio in New York, and WOR radio and tv.

However, stations such as WPIX and WNEW-TV said they plan to present full accounts of the lotteries, including the names of winners and interviews with them.

CBS said it would move "case by case" and intended to violate no federal law.

NBC stations around the country were warned to check with company lawyers before inserting any lottery-connected report in news broadcasts. The Westinghouse Broadcasting Co. advised its stations in a similar vein.

A spokesman for WPIX-TV, Harold Gold, was quoted as saying "Our policy in the past has been to cover lottery winners and events about lotteries, we will continue our standard practice to cover the lottery as a news event."

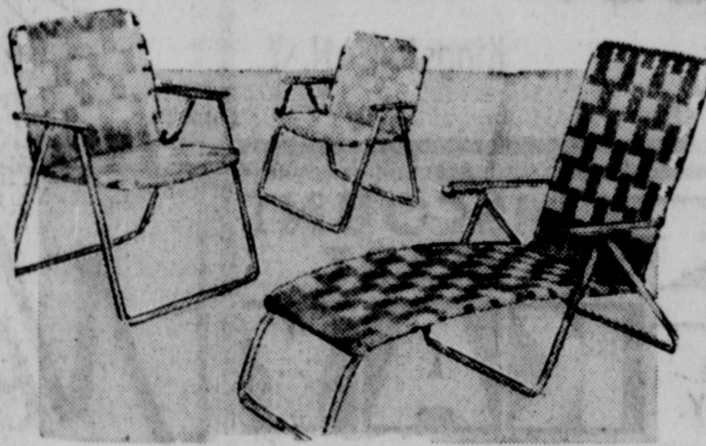

Section 1304 of the United States Code of Justice reads in part: "Whoever knowingly permits the broadcasting of any advertisement of or information concerning any lottery, gift enterprise, or similar scheme offering prizes dependent in whole or in part upon lot or chance...shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than one year, or both."

Feels Leagues Need Activity In Party Work

The annual meeting of the Woodstock League of Women Voters was a satisfying one in all aspects—the food was good, the newly elected slate of officers promising, the evening's activities programmed by Mrs. Sylvia Horsey clever, and the talk given by Mrs. Louise Pfeutze an inspiring communication of ideas and ideals.

Mrs. Pfeutze, currently a candidate for Representative-at-Large for the County Board of Representatives in Poughkeepsie, has been active in civic affairs for many years and just being present at this meeting with her was a broadening and rewarding experience, members felt. Throughout her talk, Mrs. Pfeutze reaffirmed the great worth of woman in her role of wife, parent and citizen, and renewed respect for a woman's identity as a woman, including that not quite definable but very real thing called "woman's intuition." Mrs. Pfeutze cited the lack of world peace, economic equality, and racial equality as the three major problems facing the world today, and pointed out that a fight for these three must be won by women as well as men for the simple reason that more than 50 per cent of the citizens are women. She feels that League membership is a good training ground for learning the art of active citizenship. She said, however, that if there were a prerequisite for League membership, a season of active working in a political party would gain the member first hand knowledge of politics, from campaigning to an awareness of what goes on after the candidate is in office.

Mrs. Pfeutze believes that a citizen's vote is a powerful tool that can bring about good government and unless a citizen uses this franchise in an informed, intelligent way, he will earn a government no better than he deserves. However, if the citizen measures up to his responsibility of active participation in civic affairs, world peace, economic equality can be a reality, and the problems of attaining them not again be a burden handed down to the next generation.

Spring Concert

The annual spring concert, given by the band and chorus of Woodstock Elementary School, will be presented Wednesday night at 7:30 p. m. at the Woodstock School. Musicians of the fourth, fifth and sixth grades compose the school band and the chorus is made up of singers from grades three through six.

Parents and friends are invited to attend this entertaining event, featuring standard and popular pieces.

HOW IT WILL LOOK—Architect Albert Milliken has completed his plans for an addition to the Woodstock Library. Partial razing, rebuilding and repairs, as well as extensions to the local library will get underway this year as a result of a $60,000 bequest from the late Mabel Marsh. Building will get a face lifting and undergo considerable change to emerge spanning new in the Colonial style architecture so popular in the village.

Part of Library To Be Rebuilt; Main Room Goes

Mabel Marsh's bequest of $60,000 to the Woodstock Library specified enlargement of the library, in particular an addition in the Colonial style. The architect, Albert Milliken, was named.

Extensive structural repairs were found necessary to such an extent it proved advisable to raze the oldest part of the building, namely, the main room, and rebuild from the ground up. The library will gain space by extending the front wall out 10 feet and side wall out six feet. A completely new heating system will be installed plus new lighting, new shelves, and additional table space for those who enjoy reading in the library. The back room (non-fiction room) will have an addition of 16 feet out toward the road (east) but will otherwise remain unchanged except for new lighting.

The building committee chairman, Miss Frances Rogers deserves special credit for her tenacious spirit and energy in behalf of the library; in every instance searching out what was best for a library. Her committee consists of: John Stefano, Mike Boyle, Bernard Lapo, Bill West, John Natoli, plus Anita Goldberg and Carolyn Wilson from the Executive Committee.

During the period of building it may be necessary to close the library. The Executive Committee is still making an effort to find a way to keep partially open but so far each avenue that seems possible has closed down. But the library will emerge with a bigger and better physical plant to serve Woodstock and hopes its members and patrons will have patience.

Although it is a free library for Woodstock Residents, the library urges all those who enjoy its facilities to become members by the token payment of dues. The operating budget has been around $14,000 and the program may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Leonard Waters, 62 Maverick Road; Mrs. John Ebbs of Broadview Road; or Mrs. Gregory Gebert of Briar-

WAA Will Open With Exhibit Of Black-White

"Black and White" is the title of the first show this year at the Woodstock Artists Association Gallery, and a further description is hardly necessary. The show will be open to prints, drawings, watercolors, oils, and anything else done in those two colors. Inspired by a desire to demonstrate the range and strength of the Graphic Arts, and to re-acquaint the public with the vitality of work done under self-imposed limitations, the show should prove to be an exciting start to the 48th season at the WAA.

The show will be open to all local artists, who may submit one work each to the jury of Sidney Laufman, John McClellan and William Pachner. Sculpture will be included at all shows this year, subject to the jury and space restrictions. Work is to be submitted between 4 and 6 p. m. Thursday, May 25, at the Gallery.

C of C Urging Town Action to Clean Streets

Members of the Woodstock Chamber of Commerce meeting at Deane's recently, re-elected Mrs. Kiki Minervini of the Ulster County Townsman for another term of three years. This is Mrs. Minervini's third term as a director. She was first elected in May, 1960. Also elected as directors for terms of three years were: Ned Houst, Houst's Department Store, and Bill Militello of the Woodstock Motel.

The committee, appointed to consider cooperating with the Woodstock Town Board in sweeping the streets of the village this summer, submitted its report. Hal Martin, chairman, reported 25 local merchants had agreed to pay a nominal fee in a cooperative movement to sweep the Village streets three times a week during the summer. There remain 12 merchants to be contacted and it is expected all will agree to join the movement. It was recorded that it be clearly understood the Chamber is not to assume the responsibility of sweeping the streets on a permanent basis. Members recommended the Chamber go on, record-recommending the town take necessary action within the year to assume responsibility of keeping the streets clean.

The Information Center operated by the Chamber will open the 1967 season on the weekend preceding Memorial Day. Last summer more than 1,500 visitors called at the Center, and more than 600 written requests for information on Woodstock were answered. The Center's program this summer is designed to embrace more individual member participation.

A new business, Ruth Pawelka Creative Jewelry, 107 Tinker Street, Woodstock, was welcomed as a new member.

Gardner Gallery Plans Series of Happenings Here

Saturday, May 27, the Gardner Gallery, Woodstock, opens for the second season with a varied group of paintings. Topical emphasis gives an individual approach resulting in many techniques and styles. Inspired by Nature, seen and felt through the eyes and sensitivities of Bernard Steffen and B. Sturtevant Gardner, the product is interesting, colorful and decorative. A print from a limited edition by Doris Lee, again has distinctive personality and art quality. The exhibition entitled Flora Interpretations will remain through July 3.

Another individual feature planned by the Gardner Gallery with the cooperation of the cultural and creative groups of Woodstock, is a series of "happenings." The first of these is a production of the Performing Arts of which Edith LeFever is president. A one act play will be presented on Sunday, June 11 at 4 p. m. The public is cordially invited. Miss B. Sturtevant Gardner, the artist director of the gallery, is being assisted this summer by Mrs. Muriel Salmonsohn of Valley Stream, L. I.

Fresh Air Fund Offering Chance To Participate

Mrs. Leonard Waters, Woodstock chairman of the Herald Tribune Fresh Air Fund, has announced that applications are now being taken from those families in the area who may be interested in entertaining a Fresh Air Fund child in their home for two weeks this summer. The children will arrive July 18 and remain for the period ending Aug. 1.

In 1966, over 11,000 children visited homes in 12 eastern states ranging from Maine to Virginia. Any child living in New York City whose family cannot afford a country vacation for him is eligible for a visit. He is recommended by one of the 50 social and welfare agencies that cooperate with the Fresh Air Fund in selecting the most deserving children. The host family may specify the age and sex of the child they invite. The opportunity to experience the warmth of family living is one of the most important benefits of this experience to a child. Although he may need good food, in most instances the greatest contribution to the child will not be physical but of the heart and mind.

Three children will be returning to this area for the second year. They will return to the homes of Mr. and Mrs. John Ebbs, Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Gebert, and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Kremsberg. Mr. and Mrs. Bohm Laris will entertain a Fresh Air Fund child who will be visiting Woodstock for the third summer.

Any further information about the program may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Leonard Waters, 62 Maverick Road; Mrs. John Ebbs of Broadview Road; or Mrs. Gregory Gebert of Briar-

New Bitter Orange joins Bitter Lemon

Conrad Whitehead, President of Schweppes (U.S.A.) Ltd.

Schweppes Bitter Orange is not just a new adult soft drink with a tart, distinctive flavor.

It has also inspired at least three new mixed drinks.

The Schweppesdriver, Schweppesblossom. And our latest triumph, the Rumbo.

Start off the Schweppesdriver with a jigger of vodka. Start Schweppesblossom with a jigger of gin. Start the Rumbo with a jigger of rum.

Then top up each with Schweppes Bitter Orange, to taste.

Are there any other mixed drinks that use the new flavor of whole fresh oranges, heightened by Schweppesvibrance?

If you invent any, please let us know.

Gives Opinion Of U. S. Layout At Expo Exhibit
WASHINGTON (AP) — Dirt, massive technology and tiny minds typify the U.S. exhibit at Expo 67, the World's Fair at Montreal, Rep. Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., said Wednesday.

Pike, who visited the fair recently, said he was told the exhibit was sophisticated and elegant. "I am probably unsophisticated," he said in a report to constituents, "but to me the beginning of elegance is the removal of dirt, and this had not been accomplished."

He said transient visitors passing through the U.S. exhibit on the Expo train see big pictures of movie stars, "mostly from bygone days. They see great big drawings of pop art from days which have not arrived."

"Of literature or music or depth of culture in the commonly accepted sense of the word, they see almost nothing," he said.

"They see massive technology and tiny minds."

E-K Explains Hiring Policies

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP)—Eastman Kodak Co. says it has released a six-page folder explaining its side of a dispute with a militant Negro civil rights group over hiring practices.

The folder explaining the company's hiring policies has been enclosed with the firm's quarterly report now being mailed to stockholders.

Kodak especially hoped to present its views on the quarrel with FIGHT, the civil rights group, to clergymen. The folder is available to any member of the clergy requesting it, the company said.

The Kodak folder states in part: "Many members of the clergy have been given distorted information about Kodak's employment policies and practices. Some clergymen have been misled to believe that Kodak has not been willing to hire Negroes, which is entirely false."

FIGHT and Kodak became embroiled in battle when the civil rights group charged the company with renegeing on a signed agreement to hire and train 600 unemployed Negroes.

The company contended the agreement was unauthorized. John G. Mulder, who signed the agreement last Dec. 20, was not authorized to commit the firm to hire a specified number of people over an extended period of time, William S. Vaughn, Kodak's board chairman, said.

Mulder, who was not re-elected as assistant vice-president May 18, also was not authorized to refer applicants for jobs in preference over other Negro groups, Vaughn added.

The folder states what Vaughn

Who Will Head Vietnam's Democracy?

Politicking has come alive in South Vietnam, with the approach of elections promised in the nation's new constitution. Potential candidates for president include the following, pictured below: Current Premier Nguyen Cao Ky; Chief of State Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu; Phan Khac Suu, chairman of the constitutional assembly; and Tran Van Huong, who served five months as prime minister and still retains wide popularity and support. Not pictured is Ha Thuc Ky, leader of a clandestine, middle-class party, who has already declared his candidacy. Undeclared, but popular in many Vietnamese circles is Gen. Duong Van Minh (Big Minh), who was chief of state for a while in 1963 and 1964 before being ousted.

Report Events Leading To Defection of Pearce

By FRANK MURRAY

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A reconstruction of Maj. Richard H. Pearce's flight to Cuba shows he apparently cruised across the Florida Straits at waveloop level to avoid U.S. radar, then broadcast an "any stations" radio message to alert Cuban defenses to his arrival.

Stars Split

LONDON (AP) — Actress Tarn Bassett, 32, has been granted a divorce from her husband, actor Robert Stephens.

Both are stars of Britain's national theater. The decree Wednesday was granted on grounds of Stephens' adultery with actress Maggie Smith, 32.

A Coast Guard source in Miami said today a radio message was monitored at 1:30 p.m. Sunday, just 13 minutes before the Vietnam hero with a top secret security clearance touched down at Havana's military Libertad Airport southwest of the capital.

An aviation expert said a pilot normally radios for landing instructions about 15 minutes ahead.

"Any station. This is M8546J," Pearce broadcast on a routine aviation frequency when he got within sight of Cuba.

The call was answered by a Coast Guard plane on picket duty over the straits.

"Disregard," said Pearce. That was the last heard from him or his 4-year-old son, Richard Jr., whom he took to Communist Cuba with him.

Havana Radio said Wednesday "the revolutionary government decided to concede asylum to the major of the United States Army, Richard Harwood Pearce, or the facilities appropriate to go to another country, according to his request."

A note over Pearce's signature in the Communist party newspaper "Gramma" said, "I have decided to part from my country in the company of my son, for reasons of conscience."

Strict silence was maintained on the messages until today.

Another source at the 319th Fighter Interceptor Squadron at Homestead Air Force Base said earlier no penetration was noted on the heavy radar net surrounding Florida during the time of Pearce's flight.

The Federal Aviation Agency in Miami said the 110-mile-an-hour single-engine plane would have had to fly under 100 feet at least until he cleared the American defense zone.

The FAA, avoiding red-taped diplomatic channels, radioed and telephoned their opposite numbers in Cuba Sunday to check on the missing aircraft, it was learned today.

Although the United States has no diplomatic relations with Cuba, U.S. Weather Bureau and the FAA are in daily contact with Cuba on official business.

The FAA and Coast Guard then launched a massive air, sea and land search ranging from the Bahamas to Texas and as far north as the Georgia border. The FAA said it was not notified of the message intercepted by the Coast Guard.

Pearce was pictured in a profile by the Miami Herald as a stern disciplinarian who asked his former wife to take early-morning calisthenics and made "white glove" inspections of her housekeeping.

The main source of background on Pearce was his four-day divorce trial before a jury in June 1965 at Beaumont, Tex. On the stand Pearce gave his occupation as "a professional soldier."

His wife, Sandra, won her divorce by painting Pearce as "very intense, a perfectionist," in the words of her lawyer, Thomas A. Thomas.

Under the divorce orders Pearce was forbidden to take his son out of Texas, but he often took the child to motels where they spent days together.

According to Pearce's former wife, now Mrs. John V. Mitchell of Houston, the major came to her home May 12. "He said they were going on a vacation and that he would be back this Friday. He didn't say where they were going. All I want is my baby back."

Pearce was on a 13-day leave from Ft. San Houston, Tex., where he was ranking aide to Lt. Gen. Thomas Dunn, commander of the 4th Army.

Long Memory

NEW YORK (AP) — Peter Croyan, 43, is an Irishman with a long memory and — now — a quieted conscience.

His letter air-mailed from Dublin, Ireland, arrived on the desk of city finance administrator Roy M. Goodman Wednesday.

"Many years ago as a young boy, I broke a bus window with a stone," wrote Croyan who placed the incident in the Bronx.

He enclosed $5 to "pay for the damage." Thanking him, Goodman wrote, "It is always pleasant to receive something green from Eire."

Toast to Mayor

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — A Princeton University singing group has toasted Patricia Q. Sheehan as the "prettiest mayor in the nation."

Mrs. Sheehan, the first woman mayor of New Brunswick, was saluted at the New Jersey Conference of Mayors meeting Wednesday.

A trim, 33-year-old blonde, she listened on the speakers' platform as the Princeton Nassons sang "Hail to Her Honor, The Mayor."

Doctors Assign Medicaid Bills For Collection

NEW YORK (AP) — Delays in paying physicians under the Medicaid program have resulted in some doctors assigning Medicaid bills to a private corporation for 90 cents on the dollar.

Doctors and dentists here and in Buffalo and Syracuse have assigned bills to Rugby Founding Ltd. since the firm began operating in January, according to its president, Joseph Krozak. Assistant Welfare Commissioner Henry J. Rosner said Wednesday his department had paid out some $25,000 to the firm on 20 claims, then stopped because it questioned their legitimacy.

Rosner explained that under the state Medicaid law the city is allowed to pay only the actual vendor of the services.

Physicians have complained of undue delays in payment under Medicaid—the city-state programs of aid for those unable to pay their medical bills.

Rosner said the city is computerizing its billing procedures to reduce the payment time which he conceded takes as long as six months in some cases. One Central Harlem dentist told Wednesday of taking a $3,500 check from Rugby for payment of a $3,900 bill. He without money," he complained. The Welfare Department mented.

Approve Debt Ceiling Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee approved Wednesday an increase in the national debt ceiling to $365 billion—but attached a condition President Johnson's administration had not sought.

The new figure is $29 billion higher than the present limit and is the one the Treasury had recommended. But the committee provided a partial offset to the increase.

This was done by specifying that any participation certificates sold by the government during the year beginning July 1 will count against the debt limit.

Johnson's budget calls for sale of $5 billion worth of these certificates, which represent interest in pools of government loans. The participation certificates hitherto have not been counted as part of the national debt.

List More N.Y. Deaths in Viet

WASHINGTON (AP) — These New Yorkers were listed Wednesday as killed in action in Vietnam:

Army Spec. 4 Frederick J. Carrature, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Carrature, 100 Bedford St., Harrison.

Marine Lance Cpl. Franklin G. Hazzard, son of Mrs. Yvonne B. Hazzard, 2051 Fulton St., Brooklyn.

Marine Pfc. John C. Pfeiffer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Pfeiffer, RDS 1, Hillsdale.

Changed from missing to dead: Army Pfc. William Wells, husband of Mrs. Verna Wells, 172 Merrill St., Brentwood.

Honor Teacher

HAMILTON, N. Y. (AP) — The Class of 1967 at Colgate University has dedicated its yearbook "Salmagundi" to a woman — Mary F. Gieseke, administrative secretary to the dean of students.

The dedication reads that Mrs. Gieseke "will be remembered as more than just a 'super secretary,' for she has been a teacher, a professor of what is honest and decent in life."

Mrs. Gieseke has been associated with the university since 1943. Her husband, Walter, who died in June 1965, was a professor of German at the school.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Traitors, subversives and underground resistance fighters have often been referred to as a "fifth column," says The World Almanac. The phrase originated during the Spanish Civil War (1936-1939). Emilio Mola, one of Franco's generals, said that he was leading four columns of troops against Madrid and then declared that he had a "fifth column" of supporters within the city who would help him during the fight.

Wins $5,000 Scholarship On Plane Hobby

NEW YORK (AP) — Ronnie Lago, a 17-year-old Oswego, N.Y., high school senior, today parlayed ping pong balls, cork fishing bobbers, glue and some wooden sticks into a $5,000 college scholarship.

Ronnie, who graduates from high school next month, was given the award by the Hughes Aircraft Co. in recognition of the boy's successful test flights of a small model of the Surveyor-R spacecraft.

Ronnie built his craft, called the Surveyor-R, after the real surveyor made a successful soft landing on the moon June 2, 1966.

The Surveyor-R is a one-seventh scale model of the real Surveyor and was launched six times last October in a schoolyard next door to Ronnie's home. The craft soft-landed successfully after five of the six launches, he said.

Dr. Allen E. Puckett, executive vice president of Hughes Aircraft, presented the Hughes Youth Incentive Scholarship to Ronnie, saying that the Surveyor-R had "duplicated in many important respects the feats of Surveyor-1 and Surveyor-3's landing on the moon."

Ronnie will start college at Ohio University in the Fall. He will receive his scholarship over a four-year period in $1,250 payments.

At a news conference here, the thin, blond high school student explained that his launches of the Surveyor-R had been made from a thin wire strung from a school building to a water tank.

The craft was hoisted up to the wire—this being the launch—and then was cut loose for its attempted soft landing.

On each drop, Ronnie said, the Surveyor-R was equipped with four small solid fuel rockets. Three of them, called Verniers, served to stabilize the craft, and the fourth, a "retro-rocket," slowed Surveyor-R's descent.

The Surveyor-R landings had been slowed sufficiently at a height of about two feet, Ronnie said, and at that height all the rockets shut off, letting the Surveyor-R drop softly to the ground on foam rubber padded feet.

The five successful landings were made from heights of 10, 20, 45, 60 and 85 feet. On the sixth attempt, the high school student said, one of the stabilization rockets did not fire properly, causing the Surveyor-R to tumble and crash.

Ronnie received a congratulatory telegram on the scholarship from Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller. He will fly Thursday to Los Angeles with his father, John, to tour the Hughes Aircraft plant. Ronnie will work for one month during the summer at Cape Kennedy.

Defense Counts Three Ways

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

When a defender counts a hand he should count distribution, tricks and points. A judicious use of these three counts will often enable him to find the killing defense. Of course, if he miscounts it may turn out that he has killed his partner. You can't win every time.

CBA Favors City Hall On, Near Rail Site

If Kingston builds a new city hall it should be built on or near the site of the former West Shore Railroad Station off Central Broadway, and not in downtown's urban renewal area, the Central Businessmen's Association contends.

Its opinion was emphasized at the annual meeting this week in the Casablanca Restaurant, and at which it was decided to have a committee study improvement of the central business area, including providing more parking.

On the committee are: Peter Allen, chairman; Joseph Scholer Jr., Anthony Saccoman, Edward Demski, Clark Myers and Walter Colcough.

Progress of a membership drive was discussed.

Discussion of the city hall proposal revealed that some members felt it should be built on or near the site of the former Railroad Avenue station and near the Kingston Coal Company property on Thomas Street, where it is held there would be adequate parking.

Worker Succumbs, Buried in Cave-in GLENS FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — A township worker died Wednesday after being buried in a cave-in while laying water pipe near here.

He was Kenneth Rich, 61, an employee of the Town of Queensbury Water Department. Rich was dead on arrival at Glens Falls Hospital.

Police said Rich was working in a ditch when its sides gave way. Rescuers worked for 20 minutes to free him from the mud and water.

Rich lived in Queensbury.

Set Twilight Alfalfa Weevil Area Meetings

Two twilight alfalfa weevil and management practices meetings have been scheduled by Robert D. Guzowich, Ulster County Cooperative Extension agent, for area farmers. The two sessions are scheduled, one at Wallkill and one at Stone Ridge, for the convenience of local farmers.

The first meeting will be on Monday, May 29, at 7 p. m. at the Paul Lien farm at Wallkill, where the meeting will be held at the alfalfa field at the corner of Albany Post road and the Galeville Bridge road. The second will be on Wednesday, May 31, at 7 p. m. at the S. Robert Kelder and Son farm, Stone Ridge, where the meeting will be at the alfalfa field on Pine Bush road, a half mile south of the Marbletown Grade school on the field behind the greenhouse.

These twilight meetings will include among the topics, Alfalfa Weevil so far in 1967, Spray Recommendations, "How to Look for the Insect, General Alfalfa Management and A Word on Alfalfa Varieties."

Expect No Difficulty On New District Lines

By CHARLES DUMAS
ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller and other top state officials are taking a "no-sweat" attitude toward the task of drawing new lines for the state's congressional districts.

By contrast with the teeth-grinding and turmoil that marked last year's reapportionment of the Legislature, the nonchalant attitude with which the new problem was received caught observers by surprise.

The high command allowed 12 days to elapse before gathering around the conference table to decide what to do about the federal court ruling that invalidated the present congressional apportionment.

When they emerged from their talks, they presented a picture of smiling, relaxed harmony.

Gov. Rockefeller, Assembly Speaker Anthony J. Travia and Senate Majority Leader Earl W. Brydges agreed that a Senate-Assembly study committee would come up with a mutually acceptable arrangement.

Initially, at least, it was assumed that the political hierarchy on Capitol Hill would wade into the new reapportionment crisis with bayonets fixed.

They went at it ferociously in 1965 and again in 1966, when the Legislature had to be redistricted to conform with the U.S. Supreme Court's "one-man, one-vote" concept. Last year, the conflict was so stubborn that the Court of Appeals stepped in and took the job away from the Legislature.

Raw wounds were opened on

Republican and Democratic sides, as each accused the other of scheming for political advantage in the election that would follow the appointment.

On the surface, at least, the same political sensitivities would seem to be present in any reapportionment of the 41 congressional districts. But closer examination shows they are muted.

The foremost factor is that the members of the Legislature will not be so intimately affected. It's one thing to rearrange your own district, perhaps determining your own political fate — another thing to draw lines for some colleague sitting at a possibly coveted desk in Washington.

Another consideration is a developing assertion at the Capitol that not much can or will be changed by any congressional apportionment.

Republicans and Democrats agree privately that there's no acceptable way to draw the lines that would upset the present balance of power. Democrats have a 26-15 margin, and it's likely to stay that way.

The reason is that the courts have cracked down so hard against any and all gerrymandering devices, no matter how imaginative, that the Legislature has little to do except take the population figures and drop them into place.

One old hand at redistricting complained with a wry smile that "the courts have taken all the fun out of it."

Another summed up the prevailing attitude this way: "No one really cares."

The weight of the sun is 331,950 times that of the earth.

Recently Found Innocent, Faces Robbery Charge

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A young man found innocent recently in connection with a $27,000 bank robbery, is one of four men under arrest for a $115 holdup at a warehouse office. Police arrested Robert A. Tuitt, 22, of Buffalo and three companions 15 minutes after he holdup Wednesday night at the Frontier Tax & Duty Free Merchandise Corp.

All were charged with first-degree robbery and illegal possession of a loaded weapon.

Huitt was acquitted by a U.S. District Court jury of any connection with the holdup of a branch bank of the Manufacturers & Traders Trust Co. last December. Two other men and a woman were convicted and sentenced to prison.

Hits Subsidies

WASHINGTON (AP) — A New Jersey congressman says it is scandalous and indefensible for the National Bureau of Standards to step up subsidies for large corporations during a budgetary crisis.

Rep. Charles S. Joelson, D-N.J., said the money was going to corporations "which can well afford to do their own research."

U.N. Council Will Discuss Thant's Report

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. Security Council is expected to meet again on the Middle East crisis Friday or Saturday after they receive Secretary-General U Thant's report on his peace mission to Cairo.

Cutting short his visit to Cairo by a day, Thant plans to return to his New York headquarters early Friday. A U.N. spokesman said the secretary-general spent a "cordial" three hours conferring with President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

The Soviet Union attempted to postpone the opening of the 15-nation council's debate Wednesday until Thant's return. But it failed to muster enough support to keep the question off the docket.

The United States and Britain suffered a setback when the Canadian-Danish resolution they supported failed to get enough backing to be put to a vote.

The resolution asked council support for Thant's efforts to "pacify the situation" and invited him to report on his return from Cairo. Ambassador George Ignatieff of Canada asked the council members to consult on it after Wednesday's session ended. But the Soviet Union, India, Bulgaria and Mali refused as a gesture of support for Egypt, whose delegate charged that the resolution was an attempt to sabotage Thant's mission.

"I am completely at a loss to understand what is happening here," U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg said heatedly.

Goldberg told the council earlier the United States is willing to join the Soviet Union, France and Britain in efforts both within and outside the U.N. to prevent war in the Middle East.

Soviet Ambassador Nikolai T. Fedorenko did not reject the proposal for Big Four efforts—made first by France—but said if the United States and Britain really wanted to relax tension, they should "withdraw from the Mediterranean their fleets which constitute one of the most serious causes of tensions in that part of the world."

LoPinto: Lawyer, Cook, Author

DOROTHY A. NAREL
WOMAN'S PAGE EDITOR

Italian cooking is not all pasta, pizza and Parmigiana. Every Italian province and city, every village from the Alps to Sicily boasts a specialty. The food of each region blends with the climate, and the fragrance of its food mingles with the beauty of the landscape in memory.

This is what I learned from a very talented resident of Kingston, N. Y. and Brooklyn. She is Miss Maria LoPinto, a Wall Street lawyer, noted cook, author, and world traveler. About her, Clementine Paddleford, the dean of all food editors once wrote: "Since grade school days Maria has had two ambitions, to be a legal light and a fine cook. Law is her career, cooking her recreation. Out of cooking came the hobby of writing cookbooks."

Maria has three best sellers now: ART OF ITALIAN COOKING; ART OF MAKING ITALIAN DESSERTS; and ART OF REGIONAL ITALIAN COOKING.

Two more books which met with instantaneous success are: EAT HONEY AND LIVE LONGER and NEW YORK COOKBOOK.

Maria is vacationing at her Lucas Avenue extension home (built with royalties), but time is not being wasted. She is completing work on a new manuscript, INTERNATIONAL COOKBOOK, and is outlining a novel.

"When I retire, Kingston will be my permanent home," Maria told me at lunch the other day. "Life isn't as hectic as it is in the 'fun city,' she said.

Maria has very definite ideas about cooking and why women should interest themselves in the age-old and obviously necessary art. "If you serve a man a good meal, he'll stay home," she has been quoted as saying. "No man can be romantic on an empty stomach." Maria finds meals which consist of boiled potatoes, boiled peas and fried meat "very hard to understand."

Who knows just how many husbands have been "kept home" by the savory Italian recipes in her books?

Maria also has a theory about what she calls "the American misconception" that Italian food is fattening. Although she plans all menus to satisfy any gourmet, they also meet the requirements of the calorie-conscious. One of the ways she accomplishes this is to serve only one kind of pasta to a meal... sometimes in a broth, sometimes as part of the main course. Olive oil and garlic are used only to bring out the best in certain dishes, not to overwhelm them, she says.

Maria was born in Greenwich Village, New York. Her parents were Sicilian, from a tiny village near Palermo and most of her cooking she learned in her mother's kitchen and her grandmother's in Italy.

After completing her studies at City College, Maria studied law at St. John and New York University Law Schools.

Maria is one of five sisters, one of whom, Mrs. J. DiPeri, resides on Lucas Avenue extension also.

Whether planning a new book or pleading a case, Maria LoPinto devotes herself wholeheartedly to whatever she attempts. An outstanding individual, she has certainly made a major contribution to the American family scene.

Maria has given us permission to print some of her recipes. At right she is pictured finishing a delicious Sherry Bombe. The recipe is as follows:

SHERRY BOMBE

3 egg yolks
6 tablespoons water
3 tablespoons sugar
1/2 cup sweet Sherry wine or Marsala
1/4 cup whipping cream

Combine all ingredients, except cream, in top of double boiler. Place over hot, not boiling, water and beat mixture until it gets lukewarm. Remove top part of double boiler and place in pan with cold water. Beat mixture with an egg beater or wire whisk until foamy and slightly thickened. Beat cream until stiff and fold into egg mixture.

Pour into a melon-shaped mold or 1-quart gelatin mold. Cover. If mold doesn't have a cover, a double thickness of waxed paper will serve the purpose. Secure the waxed paper with elastic or string.

Freeze until firm. Unmold and serve. Yield: 6 portions.

BASS SICILIAN STYLE

1 striped bass, 3 to 4 pounds
1 medium onion, sliced
1 can peeled plum tomatoes, mashed
1/4 cup olive oil
1 teaspoon oregano
Salt and pepper to taste

Have fish cleaned, slit down center and boned. Spread open. Place skin side down in well oiled baking pan. Brush with oil. Combine onion, oregano and tomatoes. Spread over fish. Pour balance of oil over all and season. Bake at 425 degrees F. for 20 minutes or until fish is tender. Test with fork. If it flakes easily it is done. Baste fish occasionally with the pan sauce. Yield: 4-6 portions.

ZUCCHINI AGRIGENTO STYLE

2 pounds zucchini or Italian squash
1 large onion, sliced
1 tablespoon chopped fresh basil
(or dry basil)
3 tablespoons olive oil
1 can (No. 2) plum tomatoes, mashed
salt and pepper to taste

Scrape zucchini or squash lightly. Cut into thick slices or cubes. Combine with remaining ingredients and cook, covered, for about 15 minutes or until onions and zucchini are tender but not too soft. Serve hot as a side dish. Yield: 4-6 portions.

Duke and Duchess of Windsor Will Observe 30th Anniversary

DUCHESS OF WINDSOR

EDITOR'S NOTE — Thirty years ago next month, the Duke and Duchess of Windsor were married, capping an historic love story. The duke had given up the throne of Great Britain to marry the "woman I love," and then the two went off into exile. In the following rare interview in his apartment high over New York City, the duke now, 72, tells of those 30 years.

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP) — In the sun-bathed room overlooking Manhattan, the Duke of Windsor looked back on an extraordinary life.

"These have been 30 wonderful years for me, and it has been the same for the duchess," he smiled, and he placed his half-lens tortoise shell glasses on the glossy cocktail table before him.

"Life has never been dull. Not a moment."

Everything shone in the sitting room of the Windsors' home away from home high in the Waldorf Towers; highly polished table tops; mirrors; the pair of green porcelain lions flanking a mantel at one end of the large French-style room; vases everywhere filled with red, pink and white blossoms; and the beaming duke himself.

Occasionally, he drew on a pipe. Its aroma mingled with the perfume of the flowers.

The duke had apologies from his duchess, the woman for whom he had given up his throne.

"She is not feeling well this afternoon. We have had a bit too much social life lately, I'm afraid."

Along with numerous charity benefits where their appearance always automatically guarantees success, have been some private parties in advance of their 30th wedding anniversary June 3.

Still to be crossed off their busy social calendar is the American premiere of the film "A King's Story" Wednesday night. This event will benefit the New York Hospital for Special Surgery, the Windsors' favorite charity.

On May 31, the couple will sail for England aboard the liner United States to add a happy chapter to their love story. For the first time since his abdication and their marriage the duchess has been invited to accompany the duke at a royal family function.

Going Home

They will attend the private unveiling by Queen Elizabeth of a plaque in memory of Queen Mary, the duke's mother. The event will occur June 7 outside Marlborough House where Queen Mary lived.

However, Queen Elizabeth and the duchess have met before, at a hospital following the duke's eye operation two years ago.

At any rate, they will be going home to a new kind of England, a swinging England that gave the world the miniskirt and the Beatles.

"Well, we've seen the uprising of skirts. Up and up they've gone. But they'll be down. They'll have to be."

The duke's blue eyes twinkled.

"I used to strum the ukelele when I was young," he said, shifting his shiny patent leather moccasins on the beige carpeted floor as he recalled another British influence on rock 'n' roll.

"I don't think I could handle an amplified guitar, though."

"I used to do the twist a bit, but I don't care for the newer dances," said the duke, brushing an imaginary fleck off his dark, double-breasted suit. "At a charity dance the other night a young girl across from me said, 'We love the noise.' Well, you've certainly got it! I said, 'His royal highness, now 72, rested his arms on the French chair and mused, 'If there's any recompense for growing old, it is what you learn from experience. The trouble is youth won't listen."

"I guess we were rebellious in our way, too, when we were young."

Was Dream Prince

At any rate, the duke could easily sympathize with the Beatles, and other popular entertainers plagued by shrieking hysterical teen-agers. Forty years ago the Prince of Wales was dream prince to women of all ages and classes around the world.

DUKE OF WINDSOR

In "A King's Story" he is shown on one of his hugely successful world tours shaking hands with his left hand, his right hand bandaged, out of commission from having been pumped too much.

"I would wish Prince Charles a strong handshaking arm. All my family needs one," the duke said. Other than that he does not care to offer any advice to the heir to the British crown, his grand nephew.

The conversation moved to the five years he had spent as governor of the Bahamas, "satisfying years." All in all he has met hundreds of thousands of people from all walks of life.

The duke set his pipe down. "The duchess and I were just talking about that. She loves meeting people more than I do. New people are very exciting to her. She enjoys finding out what they think and do. But I've met so many, I've had my share of that."

Because the couple have a house in Paris and one in the French countryside, their routine is quite different there.

"The duchess is such a perfectionist that running the households are quite wearing for her."

"Here," said the duke, gesturing with a manicured hand at the beige-to-pink elegance around him, "this isn't our home. These aren't our things. It is a relaxation just getting away from the routine."

In 1951, having allowed time for passions to cool over his abdication but not enough that memories might fade or records disappear, the duke put in long and tedious days at his desk writing his autobiography.

"Though it proved my fate to sacrifice my cherished British heritage along with all the years in its service," he wrote in the very last paragraph, "I today draw comfort from the knowledge that time has long since sanctified a true and faithful union."

Today the duke tenderly repeats those sentiments.

"These have been happy years."

ON LETTERS OF RECOMMENDATION

Dear Mrs. Post: A friend of mine has asked me for a letter of recommendation. He is a likeable fellow, but not very reliable. I don't want to spoil his chances for a job, but I don't think it fair to his future employer to be misleading in my praise. Will you please tell me how to tactfully handle this situation?—Bill Cunningham.

Dear Mr. Cunningham: This is a terribly difficult situation. You can't help but feel it unfairly to give less than a good recommendation, and on the other hand, it is not fair to his future employer to be misleading in your praise. All you can do for him is to emphasize his good points and refrain from mentioning all those which might harm his chances.

Flowers For A Kind Hostess

Dear Mrs. Post: My husband and I moved to this city six months ago. We have been entertained by several of my husband's superiors. These families are well established, have lovely homes and can well afford lavish parties. We have not been able to do anything in return because of financial problems and inadequate housing. Will you please tell me what I can do to show our appreciation for their hospitality?—Mrs. J.H.

Dear Mrs. J.H.: Outside of making yourself agreeable when you are their guests, or when you meet them elsewhere, nothing more is expected. It would, however, be very thoughtful of you, if you can afford it, to send flowers to the hostesses who have been very kind.

Snacks Served To Get Guests Started

Dear Mrs. Post: Whenever I have guests in for an evening, I usually serve a variety of snacks with a drink. I put these on the cocktail table. My husband thinks I should pass them around as some people are shy about getting up and helping themselves. I don't think this is necessary. What is your opinion?—Karen Mitchell.

Dear Mrs. Mitchell: Although guests should feel free to help themselves, sometimes they do hesitate to do so, and you should pass them around at least once to get them started.

Who do you tip? When, and how much? You will find the answers to these questions in Elizabeth L. Post's sixteen page booklet "The Etiquette of Tipping." To get a copy, send twenty-five cents in coin to cover booklet and shipping expenses, to Elizabeth L. Post, in care of this paper.

Sox Rookie on Spree

McCraw's 3 Homers Crush Twins, 14-1

By HAL BOCK

Associated Press Sports Writer

Eddie Stanky grinned one of his impish grins and honed the needle he keeps handy for just such occasions. His Chicago White Sox had crashed 21 hits including three home runs by Tom McCraw and walloped Minnesota 14-1 Wednesday. It was the kind of a game that makes managing a pleasure.

"I didn't like today's game," cracked Stanky. "The boys get more excitement out of the close ones."

If he wanted to see close games, Stanky should have been in Baltimore where Al Downing pitched New York to a 2-0 victory over the Orioles or at Detroit where Boston's Jim Lonborg flurried with trouble but escaped with a 1-0 victory over the Tigers. In the only other American League game played, Cleveland whipped Washington 9-1. Kansas City and California were idle.

"Twenty-some hits," he said jubilantly. "This calls for a celebration. I've got to live it up."

McCraw, who had 22 home runs in his first four big league seasons, was just as happy.

"I've never had a game like this in pro ball before and I doubt if I'll ever have another," said the big first baseman, who drove in eight runs.

Six for Season

The three homers gave him six for the season and the big day could mean trouble for Stanky.

Analyzing McCraw before the season, Stanky pointed out that he had overcome one of his shortcomings.

"He used to get home run crazy occasionally. But he's licked the problem."

On May 15, more than 3,200 eight-inch trout were stocked in the Upper Esopus and Barber Bushkill streams. The next day, more than 9,400 eight-inchers were planted in the Esopus stream in the vicinity of Phoenicia.

The stocking program by members of the club included Conservation Officer Henry Bernstein, Herman Folkerts, Jr., Robert Johansen, Russell Pyle, Edward Bungay and Edward Hoyt. This marked the third time this season the Phoenicia club had stocked the local streams, keeping up its tradition of making the Phoenicia area a sportsman's paradise.

Officers were installed and a large barbecue was held in conjunction with the meeting. During the meeting slides were shown and narrated by Conservation Officer Robert Van Benschoten of Margaretville, entitled "A Day in the Life of a Conservation Officer." The film was highly informative and well received.

BATTING — Tom McCraw, White Sox, hammered three home runs driving in eight runs as Chicago unloaded a 20-hit attack and battered Minnesota 14-1.

PITCHING — Denny Lemaster, Braves, pitched a one-hitter, the eighth in the major leagues this season, shutting out the St. Louis Cardinals 2-0.

Lonborg Fans 11

Lonborg permitted the Tigers four hits and struck out 11, making Jones' second-inning homer stand up.

He pitched out of major trouble four times. The Tigers got the first two men on in the second but Lonborg struck out Bill Freehan and got Ray Oyler on a double play ball. He struck out Norm Cash leaving Al Kaline stranded on third base in the fourth.

In the seventh, Lomborg got Dick McAuliffe and Don Wert, ending a bases-loaded threat and in the eighth Kline opened with a double but was left on base when Willie Horton bounced out and Jim Northrup and Cash fanned.

Leon Wagner tagged a two-run homer as Cleveland bunched nine hits for as many runs in the third and fourth innings against the Senators.

Luis Tiant scattered seven hits including a home run by Frank Howard for his second victory.

St. Joseph's CYO Track Champs

St. Joseph's (Kingston) CYO athletes captured seven first places and a flock of runners-up slots to run away with first place honors in the annual Herdegen Memorial track meet for elementary school boys at Dietz stadium.

The Father Herdegen Memorial Trophy was presented to the parish and was accepted by Coaches John Olive, John Olive, John Weber and Dick Terlingen.

Nearly 200 boys competed in the meet which lasted for more than three hours because of the unusually large number of heats. Individual winners received gold, silver and bronze medals for first, second and third places in that order. CYO Award Ribbons went to fourth and fifth place winners.

Ulster CCC Is HV Co-Champs

Ulster Community College and Rockland Community have been declared co-champions in the 1967 Mid-Hudson Baseball Conference.

The teams finished with identical conference marks of 5 and 1 but because of lateness of the season, the conference ruled against a playoff. The teams beat each other once during the regular season.

Ulster, coached by Al DiBernardo, had a 6-3 record overall. Third baseman Tom Greco was the team captain.

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — Robin Dundee and Elegant Hanover, two New Zealand pacers, make their U.S. debut in separate races tonight at the opening of a 52-nigh summer meeting at Yonkers Raceway.

WALTHAM, Mass. (AP) — Nick Rodis, 42, was named director of athletics at Brandeis University Wednesday. A former Harvard football and baseball player, Rodis has served in the U.S. State Department the last five years.

ROME (AP) — The 1967 European Amateur Boxing Championships open today with the experienced Soviet boxers favored to win the most gold medals.

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — William Drutz of East Brunswick, N.J., was honored Wednesday night at Roosevelt Raceway as the 50,000,000th harness racing fan to enter the track since its opening 27 years ago in 1940.

They opened the 1967 City Softball League season at Upper Hasbrouck Park Wednesday evening and Subway Grill edged the 1966 champions, Royal Grill, 3 to 2, with only one ball hit out of the infield in a three-run fourth inning rally.

A throwing error by catcher Rich Amato of the defending champions decided the contest. Bob Lasher, who combined with Bill Stokes for a 6-hitter, was the winner. Joe Norton lost a 5-hitter.

With Royals leading 2-0, the Subway "rally" went something like this:
Butch Blackwell was safe when Jerry Woodvine dropped his fly in left field. Ron Scheffel and John Bruck beat out successive infield bunts loading the bases. George Fisher beat out an infield dribbler scoring Blackwell.

With the score 2-1, Bob Lasher forced a man at second as the tying run scored. Nick Berardi walked loading the bases with one out. Fred Orr tapped to Norton, who threw a runner out at the plate but, in attempting to get a double play at first, Amato threw over Klonowski's head at first and the winning run scored.

Two Early Runs
Royals' first run in the second inning was tainted all the way. With two out, Tom Fiore was safe on Butch Blackwell's error and completed the circuit on Terry Corkery's single and a throwing error by Ron Ferraro.

Bob Short's grounder to deep second scored George Norton with Royals' second run. Norton singled to center, reached second on a wild pitch and got to third on Klonowski's infield single.

There were no extra base hits in the game and no player had more than one hit.

Winner Pays Off $16 at Mighty M

MONTICELLO — Five year old Damars Milk Man, one of the leading trotters in the New York State Sire Stakes series in recent years, showed a good return to winning form last night at Monticello Raceway, trotting wire to wire to capture the featured fourth race.

Driven from the three-post by Floyd Jones, the five-year-old bay gelding took the lead going into the first turn and was never headed. Jones was tailed most of the way by Sturdy, Clint Galbraith's four-year-old that went offside at the three-quarter mark. Then Sam Darlington driven by Joseph Schlichtig moved in to take over the challenger's role but failed to close the gap. Family Girl, who was offside early in the going came back strong to nail third.

The winner, coming the final quarter in 31.3, was timed in 2:10 and $16.80, 6.60, 4.40.

Big payoffs continued to be the mark at Monticello. The 4-7 daily double paid $115.20 when Hank Stanton won the opener with Conestoga Red and George Sadovsky came from the seven post in the second to win with Sunny Gray, who paid $23.80.

Married and the father of three children, Edwards is a native of Franklin. He joins Jim Wilson of Middletown as the first two linemen signed by the Vikings.

Urges Con Con to Retain Barge Canal System

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Argued that the federal government could afford to undertake costly improvements needed to modernize the system.

Henderson said there was no reason why the system could not be put on a self-sustaining basis under state operation.

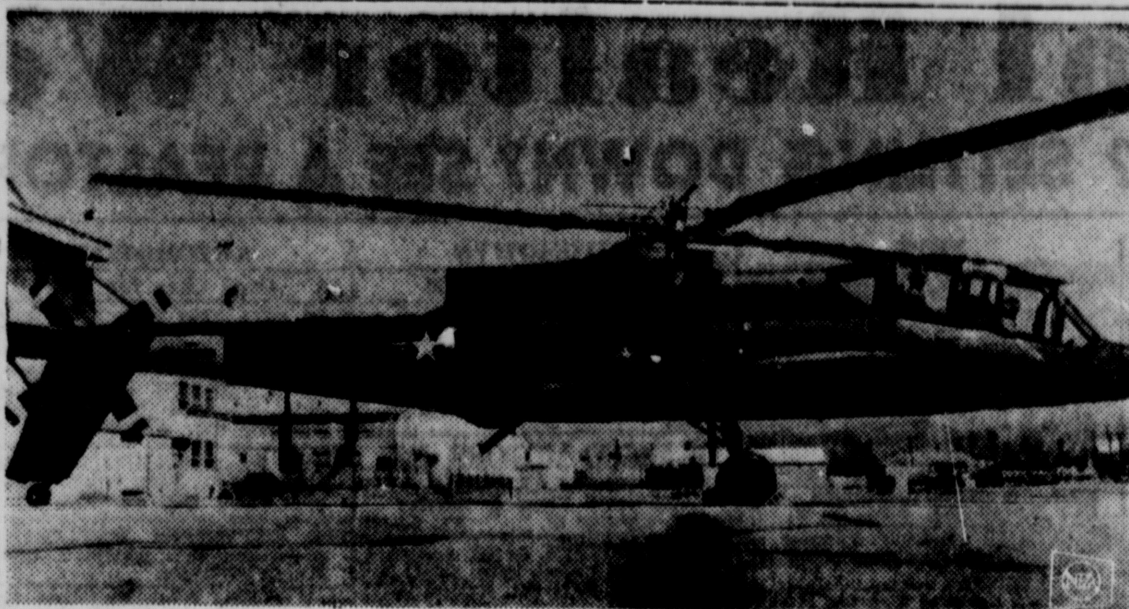

"It's a sound principle," he said, "that those who receive substantial benefits from government facilities should pay an appropriate share of the cost."

At Wednesday's session, private ski-resort owners pleaded for a constitutional barrier against construction of more state-run ski centers.

"We can't compete," said James Dempsey of Warrensburg, speaking for the State Ski Operators Association.

He complained that state ski resorts were charging all-day prices several dollars below those of private operators. While state resorts were running in the red, he said, they managed to keep operating through state subsidies.

The committee also heard arguments for keeping the forest preserve constitutionally "forever wild" and for setting up a state recreation department to consolidate the activities of various existing agencies.

LONG, LEAN ADDITION to the U.S. Army's helicopter fleet will be the winged combat rotorcraft, the AH-56A. With a top speed of more than 250 m.p.h., it is nearly twice as fast as current combat helicopters in Vietnam. The combat version will escort troop-carrying helicopters and carry out direct fire support missions. It is shown here in its first public appearance at the Van Nuys plant of the Lockheed-Georgia Company.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

In the 1880s, a U.S. consul general in Shanghai, China, shipped about a dozen Chinese pheasants to Oregon. The birds were set free in the hope that they would reproduce. Says The World Almanac, About ten years later, the pheasants were so numerous that a 75-day hunting season was declared. On the first day, 50,000 birds were taken by hunters.

Dye Replaces Gill in 2nd

Town of Kingston Supervisor Douglas V. Dye has been endorsed by the 2nd District Republican committee for vacancies to fill out the five-man GOP primary team for the June 20 election.

Supervisor Dye replaces Hurley committeeman Jack Gill who withdrew from the race last Friday because of the press of business. His resignation leaves Frank Miller as the only Town of Hurley candidate endorsed by the party in the June primary.

Miller and the three original candidates, S. Robert Kelder Sr., Marbletown, and Richard Nace and Lester Elmendorf of Ulster, strongly approved the selection of Supervisor Dye in a statement saying that "his experience in county affairs would round out the strength and diversity of the Republican slate."

With Gill's resignation, Kelder, operator of Rokel dairy farm, will still be available to represent the district's agricultural interests in the county legislature, the candidates said.

Dye had been nominated as one of the five candidates in the four-town ticket. Though the committeemen had favored Gill in the initial secret ballot, the district GOP heads felt that Dye was an excellent and logical choice as Gill's replacement. Neither of the other two candidates running independently was nominated at all, they said, and their qualifications couldn't match Dye's in scope of experience.

Awarded $750,000

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—A man paralyzed in an accident five years ago has been awarded $750,000 in a suit against the New York Telephone Co.

The sum was awarded by a jury in Federal District Court Wednesday to Robert Manning, 30, of Massena, an employee of the telephone company in 1962, when he was paralyzed from the neck down. He had sued for $2,500,000.

Manning was injured when he fell to the ground after a spike step on a telephone pole allegedly gave way.

The case was brought before Judge James T. Foley. E. Stewart Jones of Troy argued for Manning, and Frank Fritz of New York City acted as counsel for the phone company.

New York's subway system cost between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 a mile.

One Plays Many Roles in World Of Moviemaking

By GENE HANDSAKER
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor, writer, director, producer—one career merges into others in the make-believe world of show business.

Shakespeare acted in his plays, Mike Nichols, Ella Kazan, Ida Lupino and Paul Henreid acted before becoming directors. Directors, Gower Champion and Gene Kelly were dancers first, and Steve Allen is a comedian-musician-composer-author-panelist-entertainer.

The foregoing profundities were cribbed from Carl Reiner, himself a comedian-actor-writer-director-producer. And which career does he like best?

"Whatever I'm doing at the moment," said Reiner, who is 45, tall and bald, with luminous brown eyes and great energy. "Whether you write, direct or produce, it's still show business. At the moment he was writing a new play; planning to direct another he wrote, "Something Different," on Broadway next fall, and preparing to direct two more segments of "Good Morning World," a situation comedy being filmed for CBS-TV next fall.

Where does he get his energy? "My work is my hobby."

"The Russians are coming" movie audiences remember his hilarious scenes trussed back-to-back with a dummy telephone operator.

In television he has won nine Emmys, two as an actor on the Sid Caesar show and three as writer and four as producer of the Edie Van Dyke show.

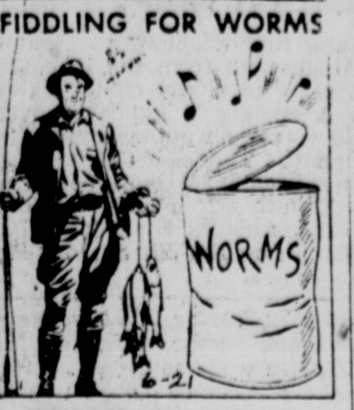

"When you have several little talents, you push 'em all together and somebody thinks you have a lot of them," Reiner remarked.

"When you direct something you've written, it's like cooking your own eggs: there's the need to have a done your way. They may be a better way, but it's not your way."

Philosopher Reiner added: "You do things you enjoy, you get acclaim. All of a sudden you become a statesman of the industry by doing things you enjoy. I invented a phrase: 'The time own self be true.'"

Why We Say--

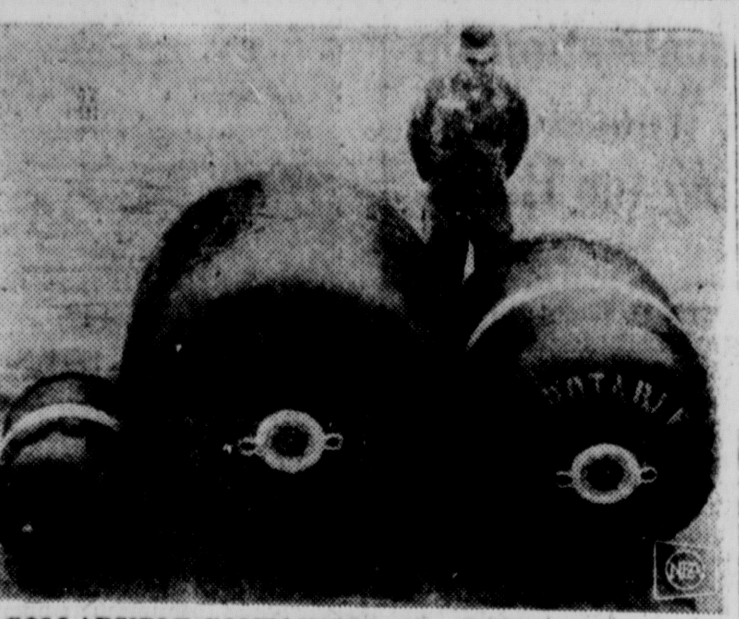

IRON BAR: This expression is somewhat secular, although practically all fishermen have heard of it. The fiddling alludes to a method of striking an iron bar to produce a shrill note which drives some species of angleworms above the ground where they can be caught. It is used frequently in the Southern part of the U. S.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Aluminum was once a rare metal valued highly by royalty, says The World Almanac. Napoleon III of France used aluminum spoons and his infant son played with an aluminum rattle. Called the "silver from clay," the metal sold for about $545 a pound. Today, a pound of aluminum sells for about 25 cents.

COLLAPSIBLE CONTAINERS are receiving wide use in Vietnam military operations, for transporting water or fuel to combat units. Advantages over metal drums include lighter weight per gallon of lading, and smaller storage space required when the containers are emptied and collapse to just 15 per cent of their filled size. Slung under the belly of a helicopter, they can be rushed to a unit that would take hours to reach by truck. From left, containers shown here include a 50-gallon, 500-gallon and 250-gallon container, all made by Uniroyal.

PHOENICIA NEWS

The Town of Shandaken Cancer Committee reports contributions of almost $2,000, the highest in New York State for towns of similar population.

Mrs. William H. McGrath, town chairman, expressed her appreciation to all who helped make the campaign a success.

At the regular monthly meeting of the M. F. Whitney Hose Company Ladies' Auxiliary Mrs. Douglas Clark was honored at a surprise baby shower. Mr. and Mrs. Clark are the parents of a daughter, Heidi Lynnette, born April 7 at Greene County Memorial Hospital, Catskill.

Equalization Up In Woodstock; Kingston Holds

Final New York State equalization rates have been established in Kingston and nine Ulster County towns.

Kingston's rate, based on assessment rolls completed in 1966, remains at 37.

The only change in rate in the nine towns listed was Woodstock which went from 12 to 13. Other towns and rates which remain the same are:

Gardiner, 12; Hardenburgh, 27; Hurley, 22; Marbletown, 23; Marlboro, 19; New Paltz, 13; Rochester, 28 and Shandaken, 30.

State equalization rates are set annually by the equalization board for each city, town and village. Rates are the ratio between assessed value of local real property and its actual value as determined by the state.

When market values rise in a community but assessments do not, the rates drop. Lower rates usually mean an increased share of school taxes and a lesser portion of state aid.

Valley Workers Get $81,484 in Unpaid Salaries

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller announced today that nearly $800,000 in unpaid wages was collected during the first three months of 1967 for more than 7,000 workers in New York State under three wage enforcement programs administered by the New York State Department of Labor.

In the State Labor Department's Albany district, which includes Ulster County, the aggregate collections amounted to $81,481 for 722 workers. Minimum wage collections totaled $7,788 for 243 workers; unpaid wage claims collected were $4,484 for 86 employees; and underpayments recovered on public work projects amounted to $69,209 for 443 workers. The total amount collected was $572,179 for 7,162 workers in 2,491 establishments for minimum wage underpayments, workers' claims for unpaid wages, and underpayments of workers on public work projects.

Minimum wage underpayment collections totaled $190,000; the money was turned over to 4,146 workers employed in 1,460 establishments.

Workers' claims for unpaid wages, other than minimum wages, resulted in the collection of $116,741 for 1,367 employees working in 877 establishments.

Underpayments of workers on public work projects resulted in the recovery of $264,533 for 1,649 workers in 134 establishments.
